Top Defense Agencies Get Wide Powers To Fill Jobs

CSC Competitive Procedures to Be Omitted to Swell Civilian Staffs

By Jerry Kluttz
Post Reporter

Sweeping powers to hire new civilian employes have been given the major defense agencies, it was learned yesterday.

The Civil Service Commission has agreed to suspend its regular competitive procedures for the Army, Navy, Air Force, and the Defense Department. In other words, these agencies are being placed back on what amounts to a "war service" system in the selection and hiring of civilian personnel.

The step was taken to prevent any delay or red tape to the probable large-scale expansion of the civilian staffs of the war agencies.

In a series of fast-breaking actions over the weekend on the Federal personnel front, these moves were made:

1. The Civil Service Commission signed agreements with the personnel directors of the Army, Navy, Air Force and Defense Departments under which they have the authority to move ahead immediately to build up their civilian staffs.

Made Their No. 1 Job

2. The commission staff here and its regional directors, throughout the Nation will be told today that the staffing of war agencies is their No. 1 job even if it means the dropping of services to non-defense agencies which, of course, appears inevitable.

3. The names of all persons who passed Civil Service's competitive exams and who are eligible for Federal jobs are to be made available to the war agencies for any use they may care to make of them. The war agencies have been given the power to hire anyone from any place on the lists. They won't be limited to a choice of the top three eligibles under the peacetime practice.

4. The war agencies won't be compelled to limit hiring from Civil Service's eligible registers; they now have the authority to hire direct from the outside to fill their needs.

5. People hired under the emer-

U. S. Experts Keep Sharp Eye For Farm Product Profiteers

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Government experts are keeping a close watch on commodity markets these days for signs of profiteering, excessive buying, speculation or any kind of manipulation in farm products.

In fact, some are digging out the records for 1941 to learn what went on just preceding our entering World War II.

They are giving particular scrutiny to dealings in meat, cotton, wool, sugar, soybeans and other commodities in which rapid increases in prices have been registered lately.

It is known that several conferences have been held at the White House on the food situation. In fact, Agriculture Secretary Charles F. Brannan was interviewed by newsmen Thursday just after one such powwow. At that time Brannan stated that the department felt that any rise in food prices at this time would be due to profiteering.

A few hours afterward, President Truman supported Brannan's statement at his weekly press conference. However, the department didn't conceal its astonishment at accompanying remarks that Mr. Truman made, that (1) there is a normal cotton crop in prospect, and (2) we expect as large a wheat crop as last year.

The Chief Executive's optimism isn't borne out by the Government's Crop Reporting Board, whose estimates are accepted as gospel in the markets. Here's what the board reported only two days before Mr. Truman's conference:

1. "Cotton in cultivation on July 1 is estimated at 19,032,000 acres. This is 8,687,000 acres, or 31.3 percent, less than last year, and 12.9 percent below the 1939-48 average."

2. "The food grain total may be the smallest in seven years, with the wheat crop less than a billion bushels, rye less than 22 million, rice production above average but one eighth smaller than last year, and only a small buckwheat crop likely." (The totals were 957 million bushels of wheat compared with 1146 million last year and a 10-year average (1939-48) of 1031 million.)

So far, in spite of general comment to the contrary, prices of farm products haven't shown indications of a runaway upward trend. Only a few commodities have made sharp advances. Meat is one. Soybeans, cotton, wool are among others. But many have moved in the opposite direction. Dairy products, particularly butter, are down. So are eggs, poultry and a number of others.

Expert observers attribute the rise in meat prices to continuing

Seoul Is Hit By 400 Tons Of Bombs

50 B-29s Batter Former South Korea Capital Rail Yards; Shops Left Burning

Tokyo (Monday), July 17 (AP).—B-29 Superforts in their second big strike of the Korean war yesterday dumped 400 tons of bombs on Seoul, the former South Korean capital, a Far East Air Force communique said today.

The communique reported that more than 50 of the Superforts hit the marshalling yards and returned to base despite heavy anti-aircraft fire. Shops in the railroad yards were left in flames.

One flight dropped its destructive cargo on the target visually but was unable to observe results before clouds blotted out the view.

Two following flights reported they bombed visually with excellent to good results.

Rail Lines Severed

Bombardiers, the communique said, had only two minutes of visual bombing time. Reconnaissance photographs showed:

Marshalling yards in flames, through railway lines severed, other buildings in the yards damaged and on fire.

The big bombers had fighter cover by F-80 jets. One of the flights reported seeing several Russian-made Yak fighters but they moved out of range.

Superforts also dumped 70 tons of bombs in the Chungju area close behind the battlefront. Excellent results were reported in this attack on bridges, roads and Red concentrations.

The bombers ran into some anti-aircraft fire around Chungju, but it "did not prove of any consequence," said the air communique issued at 11:15 a. m. (8:15 p. m., EST, Sunday).

Wonsan First Target

The first big Superfort raid of the Korean war was last Thursday's bombing of Wonsan, rail center and port on North Korea's east coast. This attack marked the introduction of strategic bombing.

Sunday's operations carried into the second day intense air support from American and South Korean ground forces.

On Saturday the airmen flew more than 220 sorties through weather that was fair to good. B-29s hit Kimpo airfield at Seoul with nearly 50 tons of high explosives. It was a radar drop and results, while considered good, could not be assessed exactly. Other B-29s hit tanks, roads, marshalling yards and bridges in the Chungju area, including targets at Chechon, Wonju and Simmin, with excellent results. A North Korean ammunition dump near Chechon was believed destroyed.

Five survivors of a B-29 lost over the Japan Sea en route to Wonsan on July 13 were rescued by a Japanese fishing boat.

THE BATTLE FOR TAEJON—North Korean Communist troops are reported to have breached American defense line north of Taejon (broken sawtooth line) and to be pouring waves of men through toward the key city. On the left of this breakthrough, other Red troops are reported building up their bridgehead in the Samgyo-Kongju area, and they may fan out in a drive (broken arrow) toward Kunsan. Other North Koreans to the east are fighting west of Mungyong in a drive on Hamchang (underlined). South Koreans are under attack along the Kum River southeast of Chongju. U. S. troops have abandoned the Taejon airport

Yank Troops Driven Back By '10-to-1' Enemy Odds

Breakthrough Made In Suicidal Attack Puts Whole Defense Line in Jeopardy

Tokyo, (Monday) July 17 (AP). South Korea's army, with powerful U. S. air and artillery support, handed the reds a "catastrophic" defeat on the east today but the Americans were driven back six miles by massive attacks on the west end of the flaming front.

General MacArthur's communique said the South Koreans, aggressive blows dealt the northerners "the most conclusive setbacks administered the Reds since they crossed the 38th parallel."

The news was gloomier on the west. There outmaned U. S. infantrymen were trying to hold back waves of North Koreans who burst from their Kum river bridgehead Sunday night behind a fierce artillery barrage.

The big surprise sprung by the South Koreans came on two sectors of the front far to the east of Taejon.

The Reds on the East coast struck out from a beachhead North of Yongdok, which is 85 miles North of the U. S. supply Port of Pusan.

Then Fifth Air Force planes hammered over, bombing and strafing. Ground forces counterattacked. The communique said the result was "a catrastrophe for the Red forces." The Reds were routed and patrols still have been unable to regain contact with the fleeing forces.

The second Red setback came late yesterday on the critical Yechon sector, 55 miles Northeast of Taejon. The Reds began a Southeastward movement headed straight for the U. S. supply lines about 35 miles to the South.

U. S. artillery, not previously reported on this part of the front, opened up and poured a deadly fire into the Communist ranks. The communique said the Southerners then counterattacked and stopped the Red drive cold. Patrols reported the Communists were diging in.

Tokyo (Monday), July 17 (U.P.).—Thousands of North Korean Communist troops cracked the center of the American Kum River defense line today and drove the United States troops back toward Taejon.

Taejon, which has been the South Korean emergency capital, was reported under artillery fire. The Taejon airport, 2 miles northeast of the city, was abandoned after enemy artillery brought it into range.

Outnumbered by more than 10 to 1, the American troops pulled back in an orderly withdrawal. It was "no rout," a military spokesman said. He estimated the United States forces had given up about 6 miles to the fanatical assault of the Red horde pouring across the Kum.

The Communist attackers paid a heavy price in killed and wounded for the ground they took from the United States fighting men, but wave after wave smashed ahead in suicidal drives through a heavy American artillery barrage, front dispatches reported.

By breaking through the center the North Koreans jeopardized the entire defense line held by the Americans and the South Koreans. There had been no reports from American troops on the west end of the line for 24 hours, but yesterday the Communists were reported throwing mortar shells into the rear of the United States positions 10 miles south of the Kum.

Snipers reached the vicinity of Taejon late Sunday, and this morning artillery fire was reported reaching the former emergency capital which had a population of 136,000 before its people began fleeing southward last week.

The Red breakthrough was the Training School Escapee's Body Discovered at Meade

Fantastic tales of a six-months-old adventure told by a mentally defective Washington youth yesterday led FBI men to a "practically unrecognizable" corpse on the western edge of Fort Meade, Md.

The body lying in an open field about 200 yards from the Laurel-Fort Meade road was tentatively identified as that of Raymond Thorne, 17, missing from the District Training School in Laurel since January 14.

The trail to Thorne was pieced together from the incoherent ramblings of 16-year-old Arthur Swann, who escaped from the training school with Thorne last January.

Baltimore FBI agents said they would charge Swann with murder on a Government reservation. The boy is slated to appear before a United States commissioner in Baltimore today.

Returned Alone

Swann returned alone to the school on the evening of the escape.

Gradually, Swann's stories to his fellow inmates of a stolen .22-caliber rifle and an accidental shooting began to drift back to school authorities.

Finally, Swann told his tale to an employe of the District institution for mentally deficient boys and girls, according to Dr. Kenneth B. Jones, superintendent of the school.

On Saturday, Swann led a school employe out to Fort Meade, but could not locate the body. The school notified Maryland State police, who relayed the information to the FBI.

Yesterday, FBI men and a special detail of Fort Meade MPs formed a search party, scoured the area and came upon the body a

Gaming Probe Is Ordered In Florida

Sheriff Admitting Gambling Income Called on Carpet

Tallahassee, Fla., July 16 (U.P.).—Gov. Fuller Warren tonight ordered a "full investigation" of Florida gambling evidence which a Senate Crime subcommittee uncovered at a hearing in Miami this week.

Warren summoned Broward County Sheriff Walter C. Clark to a hearing "to determine whether you are guilty of malfeasance in office."

Clark was a witness before the Senate committee.

Clark admitted he received income from a firm that reported large earnings from bolita sales and slot machines for three years on its income tax returns.

Five Men Trapped By Fire Deep in Utah Lead Mine

Lark, Utah, July 16 (AP).—Five workers were trapped today by fire in the depths of a lead mine at the Lark operations of the United States Smelting, Refining and Mining Co.

The blaze, of undetermined origin, broke out early today.

W. C. Page, general manager of the company's Western operations, said the search for the men "might take hours or even days."

Dense smoke hindered rescue efforts.

The men were identified tentatively as Horace Martin Seal, a hoist operator; Leland Nielsen, pump operator; Gordon Meyerhoffer, electrician foreman; Byron Thomas, surface foreman, and Clyde Auguston, assistant mine superintendent.

Stalin Held 'Welcoming' Nehru's Plea

New Delhi Paper Says He Wants Red China In On Big 5 Peace Treaty

New Delhi, India (Monday) July 17 (U.P.).—The government-operated All-India Radio and the Indian News Chronicle reported today that Premier Josef Stalin had "welcomed" Indian Premier Jawaharlal Nehru's proposals for ending the Korean war.

The News Chronicle published what it said was the text of Stalin's reply to Nehru:

"I welcome your peace initiative. I quite share your point of view of the necessity of a peaceful settlement of the Korean problem through the Security Council with the inevitable participation of the Big Five, including representatives of the Peoples Government of China (Communists).

"I suppose for a quicker settlement of the Korean problem it would be necessary to hear representatives of the Korean people."

The Chronicle commented that "Russia's response is acknowledged as helpful and satisfactory but any further step Premier Nehru may take depends on the reply President Truman sends."

Reliable sources said Nehru had proposed, in simultaneous notes to Washington and Moscow, that the United States facilitate entry of Communist China into the United Nations as a condition for ending the Korean fighting.

Napalm Bombs Effective

U. S. Mustangs Rip Into Tanks Hidden North of Kum by Reds

An Advance American Air Force Base, July 16 (U.P.).—American F-51 Mustang pilots operating from this advance base today ripped large Communist tank and vehicle concentrations across the Kum River from Kongju, 19 miles northwest of Taejon.

Returning pilots reported that large groups of North Korean tanks and trucks were hiding in the ravines leading from the north bank of the muddy stream.

Capt. Howard E. Smith of Spokane, Wash., said he definitely got four tanks this morning—two with napalm bombs and two with five-inch rockets.

First Lieut. John T. Gordon, Arlington, Tex., scored bullseyes on two tanks out of a group of four, with napalm bombs. Gordon and his wingman both saw the bombs strike the tanks, and a liaison pilot cruising nearby said he saw the two tanks "go sky-high."

Another F-51 pilot who was out of bombs and ammunition said he saw a flight of F-80 jets strafe three large barges filled with troops crossing a few miles up the river from Kongju. He said "those jets sure smeared those boats," and added he thought there were about 40 Communist troops in each barge.

Smith said there was some Communist armament across the river in the Kongju area, but he was unable to see how much

"They're not bringing them across in daytime," he said. "They're getting them across at night and camouflaging them in hay stacks."

As fast as the fighter pilots returned to this base, their planes were refueled and taken out by other pilots.

Promise to Troops

MacArthur Pledges All War Needs

Tokyo, July 16 (U.P.).—Gen. Douglas MacArthur gave the United States fighting men in Korea a pledge today that they will get everything they need—"supplies, weapons, ammunition and equipment"—to drive the North Korean Communists back beyond their frontier.

He commented, at the same time, that the Korea war was "only in the beginning stages."

The commander in chief said that supplies of all kinds already were moving to the front in astonishing quantity.

In a communique which was attributed to "a headquarters spokesman," MacArthur said:

"With the Korean war a bare three weeks old, thousands of tons of badly needed supplies and equipment have been delivered to United Nations troops in Korea by air and water at such a rate that stock piles are beginning to make their appearance near the front lines, with additional ones to be added as reinforcements arrive."

". . . We are determined that the successes which the enemy has gained thus far, and which prove beyond the shadow of a doubt that he was preparing for aggression by stocking supplies and equipment at a time when our own forces were building for peace shall be only temporary.

"Machinery has already been set in motion to provide in Korea the

Belgians Honor U. S. Dead

Huge Monument at Bastogne Dedicated Before Thousands

Bastogne, Belgium, July 16 (AP).—Thousands of grateful Belgians stood in pouring rain today on the hill of Le Mardasson to honor American soldiers who fell in the Ardennes Battle of the Bulge.

They paid their solemn tribute at the unveiling of the Bastogne hilltop star-shaped monument commemorating the battle of five years ago.

The throng, which included many Americans, stood bareheaded as the flag-decked monument was dedicated "to the enduring friendship of the people of Belgium and America." A message from President Truman was read by American Ambassador Robert D. Murphy.

Maj. Gen. Anthony C. McAuliffe, who defied a German demand to surrender with his famous "nuts" retort, dedicated the memorial. McAuliffe's 101st Airborne Division—part of Gen. George S. Patton's Third Army—was surrounded by 25 German divisions which broke through the Ardennes in December, 1944, in a desperate attempt to reach Antwerp and shut out supplies to the Allied forces driving toward Germany. The 101st held out for seven days. Allied planes and ground troops forced the Nazis back.

Antwerp was saved but 76,890 American soldiers were dead, wounded or missing.

"Now Belgium and the United States, with other Atlantic nations, are joined in comradeship to resist a new threat to our liberties," said General McAuliffe. "My government has announced that a threat to the freedom of Belgium, or to any other free nation, is also a threat to the freedom of the United States."

McAuliffe said at the first sign of military attack the resources of the free nations will be thrown into the common cause of defense.

"The younger brothers of those whose memory we honor today are fighting now with equal tenacity and courage for freedom on a far-flung (Korean) battle front."

President Truman wrote, "Never again must we permit Germany or any other nation to launch such destruction."

American, French, British, Belgian, Dutch and Luxembourg troops marched in review. The crowd had an extra cheer for American veterans of the Bastogne battle as they swung past.

The Belgo-American Association raised $500,000 to erect the monument, which stands 40 feet high. On the inside wall of a hollow circle at its center is written the history of the battle. From the air the monument forms a five-pointed star, the tips of which are 101 feet, 6 inches from the center.

Most of the Belgian government members attended the dedication.

Park Police Save Army Officer After Plunge Into Tidal Basin

By Peter Clapper
Post Reporter

Fast work by three Park policemen saved the life of a Walter Reed Hospital patient who plunged into the water between the Tidal Basin and the Washington Channel yesterday at 6:45 p. m.

The man was identified as First Lieut. John J. Gallas, 24. Other papers listed addresses as Sioux City, Iowa, and Denver, Colo. He is a patient in the neuro-psychiatric ward at Walter Reed Hospital, Army officials said.

Pvts. W. M. Cameron and W. J. Grishkot of the Park Police said they were making a routine check behind the bicycle concession on Hain's Point when they saw a man wading knee-deep on a ledge under the center support of the outlet bridge between the channel and the Tidal Basin.

Private Cameron shouted at the man to be careful. He said the wader did not respond to the call. Instead he leaped off the ledge.

Private Grishkot ran to the bridge and crawled onto the ledge. Meanwhile, Sergt. John H. Compton of the Park Police hailed a passing speedboat operated by William D. Hughes, 38, who lives on the yacht Saramia.

Sergeant Compton and Hughes raced under the bridge where Private Grishkot had recovered Gallas, who had stopped breathing.

Gallas was placed on the after deck of the speedboat and rushed to the Metropolitan Police Harbor Precinct at Maine ave. and M st. sw. Rescue Squad No. 1 and

Thinks H-Bomb Can Be Built

Nature of War in Korea Bans Use of A-Bomb, McMahon Says

Senator Brien McMahon (D., Conn.) said yesterday he believed "the Korean war is of such a character as to rule out use of the atomic bomb."

McMahon, chairman of the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee, was interviewed on the NBC television show, "Meet the Press." Saying he thought the atomic bomb could be decisive in a war, McMahon added:

"The atomic bomb is primarily a weapon to strike at the sources of power or at troops so massed as to furnish a target."

Asked whether the bomb should not be dropped on the North Korean capital, the Senator replied:

"No. The sources of power of the North Koreans are not being generated in North Korea itself. I doubt if there are any tank factories in North Korea."

Asked whether production of the hydrogen bomb would divert materials and personnel from atomic-bomb production, he said: "By putting on extra steam and effort, and recruiting extra personnel, we can maintain at least our present production of atomic weapons and also produce hydrogen weapons."

McMahon said he believed the H-bomb could be built and "delivered" but added that "I hope it never will be (delivered)."

"I cannot for one moment agree that this country (should) be less well armed than any other nation," he said, "especially one that has said so pointedly and so many

Leaders to Consult Truman on Recess

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Democratic leaders will consult President Truman this morning on the timing of any Congressional adjournment or recess during the Korean crisis, they indicated last night.

Senate Administration Leader Scott W. Lucas (Ill.) said today's "Big Four" conference at the White House will give House and Senate leaders a chance to talk it over.

Hard going in the Korean war has virtually ruled out any prospect of a sine die adjournment but a number of alternative recess proposals have been brewing ever since it became apparent the Korean campaign may be a long one.

Lucas raised the possibility Congress may simply resort to a series of three-day recesses for awhile after the omnibus appropriation bill and other "must" business is cleared. Under that arrangement, a token force would stand by except when there was emergency business to transact.

Republican leaders have been pressing for a more formal recess, subject to Congress being called back at any moment by the House and Senate leadership.

The GOP plan has already collided with opposition from Speaker Sam Rayburn (Tex.), who said such an arrangement would snub the President, who has the right under the Constitution to call Congress back.

With the billion dollar excise tax cut bill already shelved by the Korean crisis, the key to at least a brief congressional leave-taking is the 34.6 billion dollar appropriation bill, still before the Senate.

The more optimistic legislators believed this might be finally disposed of by July 29.

Administration Standing Pat On T-H Repeal

By the United Press

President Truman is standing pat on his demand for outright repeal of the Taft-Hartley law despite primary election defeats of some legislators who share his views, it was revealed yesterday.

The Administration's "all or nothing" attitude toward the controversial Labor-Management Act was restated in a letter which Secretary of Labor Maurice J. Tobin sent to the Senate Labor Committee.

The letter, which just came to light, opposed piecemeal revision, as in a committee-approved bill to legalize upion hiring halls in the maritime industry. The hiring halls have been ruled illegal under the Taft-Hartley provision outlawing the closed shop.

Some Maritime Union leaders have threatened a general waterfront strike unless hiring halls are legalized. Under the system, seamen sign up with the union for work. Those out of jobs the longest get first chance at openings.

Tobin's letter was dated three days after the bill was approved by the committee. It recalled that he supported the Administration bill to repeal the Taft-Hartley law and to return to an amended version of the Wagner Act, which permitted the closed shop.

Conceding that the hiring hall bill "may appear to be a slight step in that direction," Tobin said he believed "the best approach to removal of the evils of the Taft-Hartley law is through repeal of that law."

The 13-man committee approved the bill with only three dissents. While the Democratic majority also has been opposed to piecemeal amendment of the law, it made an exception for the hiring hall because of union pressure.

Two foes of the Taft-Hartley law have been defeated in senatorial primaries this year.

Senator Claude Pepper (D., Fla.), an outspoken critic of the law, was defeated in the Florida primary by Representative George A. Smathers, who voted for the bill in the House. Senator Frank P. Graham (D., N. C.), who supported the Administration's repeal efforts last year was beaten in the North Carolina Primary by Willis Smith, who is expected to side with conservative southerners in support of the act.

Stocks of U.S. Wool Drop One-Fourth During Past Year

American wool stocks declined one-quarter in the past year, the Commerce Department announced yesterday.

Total wool stocks on April 1 were 197,740,000 pounds, compared with 265,052,000 on April 2, 1949. The department's annual survey showed. Manufacturers' stocks were about the same as a year ago, but dealers' holdings fell off 18 percent, primarily in the carpet wool class.

In the first 17 weeks of 1950, apparel class raw wool consumption was 30 percent higher and carpet wool 6 percent higher than during the same 1949 period.

3 Would-Be Women Marines Disappointed

Three women marched into the Marine Corps recruiting office here yesterday and tried to enlist.

In each case, the answer was a polite "No."

Now the Marine Corps wants women—in fact, it sent out a call for them Saturday—but they must be corps veterans. This let out yesterday's feminine trio.

But two of the applicants—Joan Lord, 18, and Bernice Hipsley, 18, both of 1818 Ingleside tr. nw.—took the "no" in stride and announced they would join the women Marine Reserves instead.

Joan, a clerk for the FBI, said she'd been aiming at the Marine Corps since she left Martinsburg, W. Va., for Washington last November.

Her roommate, Bernice, a nurses' aide in the FBI dispensary, thought the corps "sounded better than anything else." Both girls said the Korean incident had little effect on their desire to enlist.

Marine recruiters listed the third woman applicant as Josephine Puschnig of Washington, but said they had not recorded her street address.

Army, Air Force and Navy enlistment offices also were open yesterday—the first Sunday sessions for the three services since the Korean action began.

The Navy said it had four applications for the Regular Navy, tentatively accepted two of them. The office also swore in three enlisted Naval Reservists.

The Army and Air Force reported a quiet day with "a lot of telephone inquiries" but no applications.

Wallace May Quit Over Korea

South Salem, N. Y., July 16 (AP). Henry A. Wallace said tonight he would quit as Progressive Party leader if the rank and file rejects his views on Korea.

Yesterday he declared his support of the United States and the United Nations in the Korean War, thus splitting with party leaders who said foreign intervention can only make the Korean dispute more difficult and bloody.

Wallace said he hoped the party rank and file would come around to his point of view "once they have the facts."

If they don't?

"You can answer that yourself," said Wallace. "You can't lead folks who don't agree with you. In due course, we will find out where the rank and file stand."

Wallace was the party's 1948 candidate for President.

Russia Reports

British Told Envoy Is in Pyongyang

London, July 10 (AP).—The Foreign Office said tonight it has been informed by the Soviet Union that Capt. Vyvyan Holt, missing British minister to Seoul, is now in Pyongyang, North Korean capital.

It said the information was given by Andrei Gromyko, deputy Russian Foreign Minister, to the British Ambassador in Moscow, Sir David Kelly.

The Foreign Office also said Gromyko told Kelly that four other British subjects, missing since the North Korean Communists overran Seoul, are also in Pyongyang.

The announcement gave no other details. Britain has also inquired about the fate of the Bishop of Korea, missing since the start of the Korean war.

Last Monday, Undersecretary of State Ernest Davies told the House of Commons Holt "was in Seoul at the time of his capture by the North Koreans. There has been no news of him since then."

He said the Anglican bishop, the Rev. Alfred Cecil Cooper, "is understood to have been away from Seoul at the time of its capture but is presumed to have been in that part of South Korea which has been overrun."

Lake Success, July 16 (AP).—Press dispatches from several foreign capitals indicated today a preliminary negative response to Secretary General Trygve Lie's appeal for fighting aid in Korea.

This first reaction, however, was from smaller nations from which little or no aid was expected when the Secretary General addressed his appeal to 52 nations Friday. Most of the governments which might be expected to send ground troops have not made their decisions public.

Based on press dispatches alone, and not on any official communications to the U. N., this was the first reaction:

Stockholm—The dispatch of a Swedish ambulance unit is likely to be Sweden's chief contribution in Korea. Minister of Defense Alan Vougt in a speech Sunday said the sending of an ambulance unit "stands in the foreground," and would be "completely in line with Swedish tradition." He made no mention of ground forces.

Tel Aviv—Foreign Minister Moshe Sharett indicated that Israel would not send ground troops to Korea because she fears an attack by her Arab neighbors. The Lie appeal will be considered at a cabinet session this week.

Oslo—Norway has instructed her permanent delegation at Lake Success to inform the Secretary General her military forces are very limited and it will not be possible to contribute enough troops to be effective, the Foreign Ministry said. The instructions emphasize Norway is willing to discuss the question of placing Norwegian shipping at the disposal of the U.N. for transport purposes.

Auckland—Prime Minister Sidney Holland announced Sunday that the New Zealand Cabinet will consider the request for additional assistance, particularly ground forces.

Ottawa—The Canadian External Affairs Department said Saturday the U. N. appeal is being studied by the government and probably will be taken up by the cabinet Wednesday. Canada has sent three destroyers to fight in Korean waters.

Cairo — Mustafa Masrat Bey, Minister of Army and Defense, declared Saturday Egypt would send no troops to Korea. Egypt abstained from the Security Council resolution calling for military sanctions against North Korea.

U. S. Balking On Korea, Red Press Claims

Moscow, July 16 (AP).—The Soviet press told the Russian people today there is a continually rising wave of discontent in the United States and throughout the Western world over American intervention in Korea.

From Pyongyang, North Korean capital, a Tass correspondent reported 114 American war prisoners had signed a declaration saying "Korean internal questions must be decided by Koreans themselves."

The press also printed a dispatch from Pravda's New York correspondent reporting one million signatures gathered in the United States as indorsements of the Communist-sponsored Stockholm "peace" petition.

The dispatch said 400,00 signatures were collected after President Truman's declaration on Korea. It said every day larger numbers of Americans are demanding a cessation of the Korean war and the withdrawal of American troops.

The papers reported an unwillingness on the part of U. S. soldiers in Korea to support the war. In particular, Tass described protests by American war prisoners, quoting a statement reportedly signed by them as saying:

"We were sent to South Korea and told we were going to help Korea establish peace and freedom. But we saw an immense striving of the population to unite the South and North. Koreans for years have suffered from foreign meddling. We clearly came to understand that the American Government is carrying out in Korea armed interference and we firmly believe the Korean questions must be decided by the Koreans themselves."

Tass said the American war prisoners stated they were being treated well and their wounded were being hospitalized. The Soviet press carried a denial by the North Korean government that American war prisoners were being shot.

Pravda reported American reactionaries are giving vent to louder demands for the use of atomic bombs against Koreans because of American failures in Korea.

Shinwell Has Meeting With French Leaders

Paris, July 16 (NYHT).—Emanuel Shinwell, British War Minister, flew to Paris today for a four-hour conference with Premier Rene Pleven and Defense Minister Minister Jules Moch.

Reliable sources said the three statesmen discussed the United Nations police action in Korea as well as Western defense problems, although a communique described their meeting only as a luncheon to enable Shinwell to renew his acquaintance with Moch.

ILO Will Spend Million to Speed Europe Emigrants

Nearly one million dollars in Marshall Plan money has been authorized to help speed emigration from western Europe's overcrowded countries, the ECA announced yesterday.

The money will be given to the International Labor Organization (ILO) to underwrite technical work in connection with the proposed emigration program.

It will be spent to investigate possibilities of emigration from western Europe's overcrowded areas, ECA said, in an effort to improve the living standards of the countries. Some of the excess labor pool in those countries could be used in other parts of the world to good advantage, it added.

The program was approved by President Truman, ECA said.

Everything at Steak!

By Albert Parchey Mesirow

TO A NATIVE of St. Louis, the summer climate of Washington is that of a resort city. What we here call heat and mugginess, St. Louisans welcome as cool relief from their own distressing weather. I can well remember returning to St. Louis from a summer-time excursion to the National Capital. In wide-eyed wonder, I reported that during July, Washingtonians fried eggs on the Capitol steps. My father snorted. "Here in St. Louis," he said, "the humidity is so great that I poach two eggs for lunch every day on the sidewalk at Grand and Olive!" All this is preliminary to the announcement that I intend to stay by my chores all summer, and that this column will appear each Monday, as usual, in the same space. Even during the week in which Parchey's traditionally closes to give our staff a well-earned vacation. That will be from midnight Saturday, August 26, until 11 a. m. Tuesday, September 5, the day after Labor Day. I tell you this now, because I know there are those among our readers who will want to plan their vacations to coincide with ours, because they can't tolerate the idea of eating out elsewhere in Washington!

Countless atrocities have been committed in the name of the lordly shrimp cocktail, yet no amount of droopy drug store lettuce or pale, runny sauce can dim its popularity. And that, I suppose, is a tribute to the shrimp itself. For large or small, tender or tough, this is the most flavorful of the denizens of the deep. Here at Parchey's, we remain faithful to the Jumbo Fantail, taken from the Gulf of Mexico. They come to us bedded in ice, raw. We vein them and peel them and pop them into boiling water, to which has been added a few pepper corns, the flowery tops of celery stalks and a pinch of salt. When they reach the exactly proper shade of delicate pink, we drain these luscious beauties, dry them and put them in our cavernous refrigerator for a thorough chilling. Then, at your order, they're rushed to your table, frosty-cold, gleaming their chromatic effulgence against the bright green of a crisp and icy leaf of fresh garden lettuce, acompanied by a crystal ramikin of thick, ruddy sauce of transcendent goodness. In this sauce, of which tomato puree is the base, are many and exotic Oriental seasonings, brought from far places bearing names like jewels. Mace from Banda, cinnamon from the Celebes, cloves from the gardens of Amboyna. These are blended, in minute quantities, with tarragon vinegar, dry mustard and other more conventional ingredients, and whipped vigorously into a smooth, heavy liquid, thick with flavor and richly succulent. Come in and try. Our address: 19th at K St., N.W.

On a visit to the famous Napa Valley of California, I was particularly intrigued by the fabulous legends surrounding the memory of the founder of the Inglenook vineyards. This prodigious character was a retired Finnish sea captain by the name of Gustav Nybom, who settled at Inglenook after amassing a fortune in the Alaska Commercial Company. From 1879 until his death, Captain Nybom made the Inglenook vineyards his hobby. He brought vines from France and Germany and planted them in the rich California soil. He built a massive stone winery in the shape of a fortress that still serves its purpose. He even imported, from Germany, specially fine oak cooperage, much of which is still in use. And he collected what is one of the finest libraries on wine now in existence. But to me, Captain Nybom's most precious heritage is the superb Inglenook "Pinot de la Loire," a dry, full-bodied Burgundy-like wine, rich in bouquet and boasting what can only be described as a velvety bigness of body. My first impression of this wine was that I had, in my own awkward way, stumbled upon one of the world's great wines, and I am happy to report that my judgment has been vindicated by such eminent authorities as Frank Shoonmaker and Tom Marvel, neither of whom, however, agrees that the grape from which it is pressed is a "true Pinot." Be that as it may, our Inglenook "Burgundy" is a superlative accompaniment to your thick, running-with-juice Parchey filet mignon. At only $1.25 for a half bottle (ample for two) or $2.25 for a full, it is a luxury you can doubtless well afford, and to which you should in fairness to your epicurean tastes, treat yourself forthwith! Our address: 19th at K St., N.W.

Americans Retreat Under Red Shelling

first in the central sector of the American line which had beaten off earlier attempts to cross the river.

Communist troops first gained a foothold on the south bank of the river Friday, but that was on the western end of the American line. Since then the Red army has been building up its bridgehead there, near Samgyo and Kongju, 19 miles northwest of Taejon. Thousands of Red troops were reported to be in the Kongju bridgehead area.

A Communist army communique broadcast by the North Korean government radio reported the "peoples army" continued its advance on all sectors of the front. The communique also said the North Korean air force, which has been strangely inactive, had risen to fight superior enemy forces and on July 14 had shot down two four-engine bombers.

In the central American sector the attack from the Communist lines pitted thousands against hundreds. The Communist losses were heavy but whenever a North Korean soldier fell there was another there to take his place.

The shattered Yanks withdrew to "previously prepared positions," a military spokesman said.

Word After Long Silence

After a long silence from the front, a dispatch from United Press Correspondent Robert Miller described the renewed assault from the north.

It was the retreat from Chonan and Chochiwon all over again, Miller said.

Earlier today, a communique from MacArthur's headquarters had indicated the Americans were holding their ground with the exception of one small penetration near the juncture of the United States and South Korean lines northeast of Teajon.

The buildup for the Sunday night attack had started 24 hours earlier, Miller reported, with the Communists pouring thousands of troops through the Konju bridgehead, northwest of Teajon). Other thousands came across the Kum in small groups in the central and eastern sectors of the American line.

About 10 a. m. Sunday the Communists cut loose with their well-coordinated attack upon the central front with the apparent intention of cutting the Taejon-Chochiwon road behind advance American units northwest of Taejon.

"They threw in an artillery barrage that forced the Americans into foxholes," Miller reported.

"Then a swarm of Red infantrymen poured over the hill. As soon as they gained control of vital communication links between the American front and rear units the North Koreans went to work on the forward positions."

[The Associated Press reported United States tanks were supporting the infantry in the heavy fighting and that some of the tanks were hit by a new high-velocity antitank rifle that drilled a hole through the armor more than an inch thick.—Editor's note.]

Charge U. S. Big Guns

An American artillery officer who said his unit was firing point-blank at the headlong rush of Red troops finally had to order his men to retreat.

"For every 10 we killed, another 10 came charging over the hill to replace them," the officer said.

"They just kept coming and coming and finally we had to make a run for it."

A Korean air corps lieutenant, Myung Eui Tak, serving as an interpreter for an American unit, was on a front line road when the attack came.

"We jumped out of our trucks and dived into a ditch, and then the Communists came over the hill to our left from across the river," Tak said.

"They set up machineguns on top of the hill and shot us to pieces. The Americans fought back, but their rifles could not shoot far enough."

Tak said Red infantrymen then infiltrated into the river valley on the American side, forcing those Americans who were not wounded to flee.

The North Koreans came at the Americans from every side, down the shrub-covered hills and through the little valleys between the hills.

They overran command posts, got into the artillery and mortar positions and poured fire from automatic weapons into the valley where Americans were trying to protect the road to the rear, keeping it open for a withdrawal.

U. S. Major Dies Hero

One American major charged a North Korean machinegun nest, singlehanded. He knifed three Koreans to death before he was overpowered and killed, witnesses said.

As the Americans withdrew toward Taejon they had to face a Communist barrage that made a death trap out of a 4-mile stretch of road. But some of the Americans made it to Taejon although the road was clogged with burning jeeps and trucks.

At the west end of the line the Communist troops were sweeping southward and southeastward in an attempt to crumple the American left flank.

Gen. Doolittle Pays Business Visit to Tokyo

Tokyo (Monday), July 17 (U.P.).—Former Lieut. Gen. Jimmy Doolittle arrived here today for his second visit since he led a flight of 16 bombers in the first American air strike on Tokyo in 1942.

Accompanied by his wife, the famed flier came here on a business trip as a Shell Oil Co. executive. He hopes to see his military friends during his stay and may sit in on Korean war briefings. He was met by his son, Lieut. John Doolittle, 28, a Fifth Air Force troop-carrier pilot.

Hero of Bataan Compares Battles men, guns, ammunition and whatever else is needed to drive the invaders back north of the Thirty-eighth Parallel.

"It will require ships, trucks, aircraft and superhuman effort, but we will do the job in the shortest possible time."

So efficiently and so smoothly are supply operations being carried out that "in spite of efforts of the enemy to prevent it, temporary shortages of some items that have occurred have been filled within a period of hours from the time that word reached general headquarters in Tokyo," the communique said.

"To provide front line troops with things they need when they need them, and without regard to the elements or to distance, requires teamwork that can only be achieved after many months of meticulous planning and a high degree of training," the communique continued.

"The fact that our troops who are fighting such a gallant battle against a vicious enemy that outnumbers them many times are getting what they need in a war that is only in the beginning stages is a tribute to that tireless team which keeps supplies moving forward day and night."

Oil Stocks Are Adequate For Present Korea Need

Tokyo (Monday), July 17 (AP).—Enough oil stocks to provide for the immediate requirements of all United Nations forces operating in the Far East have been provided, a General MacArthur communique announced today.

No future shortages are contemplated due to arrangements by MacArthur's area petroleum office, the communique said. Among these arrangements is one providing oil for Korean operations, the communique said.

Russia Rejects Latest U. S. Note On Jap POWs

London, July 16 (U.P.).—Russia bluntly informed the United States today that previous notes on Japanese war prisoners in Russia "exhausted" the subject, Moscow radio reported today.

The broadcast said Russia sent a note to the United States replying to the June 12 United States note which portested that the Russians had not completed repatriation of Japanese prisoners.

Moscow radio said the question raised in the State Department's note was exhausted in full by the official Tass news agency statements of April 22 and June 9 on termination of repatriation of Japanese war prisoners.

On June 9 Moscow broadcast a statement that only nine war prisoners remained in Russia for medical treatment and that 971 were turned over to the Chinese Communist government for "grave crimes against the Chinese people."

The Japanese government has insisted some 300,000 prisoners have not been repatriated.

Maryland Man Shot By Wife's Ex-Husband

Alfred Nichols, 27, was shot four times with a .32 caliber automatic in his trailer in a camp just north of Laurel, Md., last night.

Maryland State Police arrested Herman Summers, 35, of Leesburg, Va., ex-husband of Nichols' wife, shortly after the shooting and, charged him with assault with a deadly weapon.

Trooper Nobel Collison said Summers will face preliminary hearing in Howard County Court today in Savage, Md. Nichols was reported in "good" condition in Dr. Warren's Hospital in Laurel, Md.

Refugees Tell of Red Rule in Seoul

Somewhere in South Korea, July 16 (AP).—Refugees from Red-captured Seoul say Communist tanks battered open prisons of the former South Korean capital the first day the invaders entered the city.

The freed prisoners then set themselves up as a guard force, operating from police stations and police boxes.

Refugees, whose names are withheld to prevent harm to relatives left behind, gave these stories of the first days of North Korean rule over the city of more than 1,500,000:

June 27—(two days after the Reds crossed the Thirty-eighth Parallel)—the invaders spent the night in a northeastern suburb of Seoul.

June 28—Communist tanks and troops entered the city. The tanks broke down the gates of Mapo and Somaemun prisons. Prisoners gathered at City Hall and organized a guard force. Many leftist young men joined them. They took over police stations and police boxes. Lower-bracket governmnet and factory workers were given arm bands and acted as auxiliary guards. An underground Communist organization surfaced and organized "Peoples' committees" in all Seoul precincts.

June 29 — Red troops went through the homes of the wealthy and the high government officials, distributing the contents to poor people living nearby. American airplanes bombed Seoul railway station and the motor pool of the departed American Military Mission in Korea. The pool was being used as a concentration point for Red tanks.

June 30—U. S. planes again attacked. Food became scarce.

July 1—A peoples' court was established in each precinct. The judges were North Korean civilians or army men. Persons most likely to be proved anti-Communist were the first tried. The refugees said they heard many death sentences were carried out but they could not confirm this.

The sequence of other events was not clear.

One of three newspapers the Reds continued to publish reported that President Syngman Rhee of the Republic of Korea had "escaped to Japan." The next day another paper said Rhee had been captured between Suwon and Taejon, south of Seoul. Rhee has been safe in uninvaded territory since the shooting started.

One refugee, jailed by the Reds three days, said that while there he heard the invading army suffered such heavy losses in the fighting below Seoul "it will take a month to dispose of the dead." This refugee was questioned, released and ordered to go to North Korea. Instead, he escaped southward.

The first shipments of Seoul draftees, about 30,000 students, left for the front July 3, the refugees said.

The price of rice by July 5 was about seven times its price the day the invasion began. The Communists ordered the price back down and said anybody buying or selling at higher figures would be shot. Sales stopped. Seoul residents quickly bought up all the produce of truck gardens. The Reds then searched house-to-house for foodstuffs and took from each all but enough for three meals.

The refugees said the soldiers were moved to the outskirts of the city as soon as a civil regime was established.

No more than 100,000 of Seoul's 1,500,000 people got away, they said.

North Korea's Radio Pyongyang announced that Shin Pong Cho, who as head of Seoul's Ewha High School never was suspected of leftist leanings, was one of the two top men of the Seoul Communist Party. The radio listed the other as Kim Eung Chin, an assemblyman from Suwon.

New Rule Bars Thousands of Enlistments

New York, July 16 (NYHT).—Thousands of combat-wise veterans have been turned down for enlistment because of a regulation which went into effect July 1, it was learned today.

These men are denied the right to volunteer for service in the Army or Air Force because they have dependents and do not possess a military specialty listed as critical by the services.

A recruiting official said for a veteran with dependents to enlist he must have had at the time of separation a rank above corporal for the Army and staff sergeant for the Air Force. Married men, separated more than three years ago and whose military job is not listed as critical, may not enlist under any conditions, he said.

Before July 1, 1950, both the Army and Air Force listed 427 jobs in short supply. Then Special Regulation 615-120-8 was issued which listed 33 critical jobs for the Army. The Air Force list totals 55 jobs. All are highly technical skills.

U. S. Experts Watch for Any Signs of Manipulation in Farm Product Prices high earnings by the public. In its Outlook Digest the past week the Bureau of Agricultural Economics reported:

"Farmers' prices continue to draw strength from the rising activity in cities and towns. The Index of Prices Received by Farmers has been steady for several weeks at a level five percent higher than at the beginning of 1950 and only slightly below a year earlier."

Truck crops have shown the sharpest advance among the commodity groups as compared with a year ago. They are up an average of 17 percent.

Hogs last week were at the top price for two years. For the week ending July 8 they had reached $23.14 average, against $20.49 the week before. The lowest was during the week of April 1 when hogs touched $15.81. During the week of January 14, when the Commodity Credit Corporation was holding its breath for fear it would have to buy a lot of hard-to-store pork to support the market, the price got down to $15.86 per 100 pounds.

The average price for steers for the week ending July 8 was $30.86 per 100 pounds. Last week this strengthened almost a dollar. The lowest this year was $25.34 for the week ending January 28.

The boom that authorities are watching most carefully is in soybeans. The July future reached $3.30 on July 3, and has been ranging between $3.27 and that figure since.

On March 10 the July contracts sold for only $2.39—thus registering a jump of almost a dollar in four months.

The Commodity Exchange Authority recently issued a special statement warning against "an unusually large volume of speculative activity in the market." Trading in soybeans was 30 percent greater this spring than in the last quarter of 1949, although the seasonal peak of hedging was passed. A survey as of March 27 showed that 87 percent of the 3096 accounts in soybeans were speculative.

The sharpest recent advance was made by cotton. Cotton jumped about 10 percent on the strength of the short plantings reported last Monday. The average price for cotton on Friday, July 7, was 34.3 cents a pound. On Monday, when the Crop Report was made, it jumped to 36.18 cents. On Tuesday it went to 36.86 cents.

The extent of the jump is best illustrated when the present price of around 37 cents is compared with the postwar high of 38.14 cents registered on April 24, 1948. On the other hand, it hasn't been below 30 cents, except for brief periods and then less than a cent, for a year.

Wool Showing Strength

Wool, the other chief source of textiles, has been showing strength for months. A year ago the bid in New York was $1.09 a pound. This week it was $1.60; while wool tops registered a jump from $1.41 to $2.08 in the same period. Wool jumped about 8 cents in the week that cotton jumped 3 cents.

The farm price of corn has gone from $1.15 a bushel on January 15 to about $1.36 now. Most of this increase is considered due to the short crop reported in wheat.

In spite of these advances, the general scale of farm prices is still under a year ago. The Index of Prices Received by Farmers stood at 247 in June, compared with 249 in June a year ago. In between, however, it had dropped to 233 in December. (The index is based on 100 as the average for the five-year period, 1909-1914.) It is still far below the 306 reached in January 1948. That is the all-time high.

Holding down the index are a number of commodities that are under a year ago. Poultry and eggs are the farthest down with a decline of 26 percent. Vegetables, other than truck crops, are down 24 percent. Fruit is down 12 percent. Minor declines have been registered by tobacco and dairy products.

Failure Heed Editor on Asia Costing Dear

Daily we are paying dearer for failing to follow the free federal policy in Asia that Clarence Streit, editor of Freedom & Union, author of Union Now, urged five years ago. Reporting the San Francisco U. N. Charter conference, he warned the democracies against disunion and imperialism in Asia.

Streit urged then that the Atlantic democracies unite and offer a "Four Point" program in the Pacific to avoid the disasters they have since suffered there. With the constructive foresight that distinguishes Freedom & Union and that—as Korea proves—can be ignored only at fearful cost, he wrote in June, 1945:

"Either the democracies must work out separate postwar policies in their Pacific territories, or they must work out a common policy. The former means dangerous division . . .

"The leading democracies at the conference here have given the impression of aiming mainly to improve their national positions . . . the U. S. to get strategic islands, the others to continue indefinitely their rule over Asiatics . . . sacrificing their good names and principles for considerations of power that are picayune compared to the power they could gain by uniting to advance their ideals . . .

Four Point Plan for Asia

"Imagine . . . the democracies deciding in a Congress to work out a common program to achieve, say, these democratic ends for their Pacific territory:

"1. Self-government, self-determination in a specified time.

"2. Economic development to raise the lowest native standard of living 100% in a specified time, while making their raw materials equally accessible to all.

"3. Free grade school education for all native children within a specified time.

"4. Long term credits to finance this program.

"Mere announcement that a Congress of democracies would work out such a concrete program as this would restore confidence in democracy in Asia and everywhere, give the dynamic impulse it now lacks, help shorten the war, and secure peace, improve the European situation, lead toward real Union of the Free.

Opportunity Fooled Away

"On the theory that they should not unite more behind their free principles than they could unite with their Russian ally, the democracies let go the opportunity the war in Europe gave them [to federate]. The results are only too visible . . . Shall we fool away the opportunity [in Asia] we still have left?"

For five years now we have fooled it away. True, in 1948 President Truman began moving toward a fraction of this 4-Point policy—though not toward the basic idea of free federation. Contrast this program with his "Point 4" . . . Too little . . . too late.

Freedom & Union Needed and Noted For Foresight

Disunion has now left all three great democracies fighting—still separately—to keep a non-Communist toehold in the Far East: Britain in Malaya, France in Indo-China, the U. S. in Korea. And—heed this warning—the free are only beginning to pay the cost of failing to federate and bring the East the economic and educational bases for free government.

Federal Union of the Atlantic Democracies is still the key to freedom and peace in the East as well as the West. It has advanced far since 1945. An Atlantic Union resolution is now before Congress. The Atlantic Union Committee under Justice Roberts reports chapters now in 37 States.

Union of the Free is gaining—but Korea proves Stalin is too. To avoid worse disaster foresight is needed now even more than in 1945. To help prevent World War III you need to keep ahead of the news. You need foresight. Yes, you yourself need it now.

AP Reporter, Ban Lifted, Back in Korea

Tokyo, July 16 (AP).—Associated Press Correspondent Tom Lambert flew back to the Korean war front tonight after General MacArthur personally rescinded a ban the Army had placed on field reporting by him and another correspondent.

The supreme commander expressed confidence in the handling of future front assignments by Lambert and Peter Kalischer of the United Press. MacArthur also lifted the ban, he said, on the basis of old friendship for both newsmen.

MacArthur refused to impose formal censorship, a step he described as "abhorrent." In the field, however, the Eighth Army commander, Lieut. Gen. Walton H. Walker, has full power to impose censorship if he deems it necessary.

Lambert's field dispatches, quoting outnumbered United States officers and men as they fell back step by step from Suwon to the Kum River line, irked some high officers for reflecting disillusionment among some troops. They contended such quotations gave the enemy "aid and comfort." His stories were not challenged on grounds of accuracy or security.

Lambert said he sought to be restrained and objective in his reporting and had vainly suggested several times to Army authorities that officers be assigned to guide and advise correspondents.

Kalischer said the charges were "astonishing" and "false."

The Army abruptly denied both men permission to return to Korea Saturday after a brief rest in Tokyo. The case was taken to General MacArthur Sunday by Associated Press Bureau Chief Russell Brines and Earnest Hoberecht, UP chief of bureau. Lambert and Kalischer accompanied them.

MacArthur met all four affably and told them he appeared to be alone in advocating no formal censorship in the war zone. He said he felt sound reporting rested on almost intuitive judgment of trained newspapermen.

More than 50 telegrams pertaining to the ban were sent to MacArthur's headquarters from press association executives, newspaper publishers and editors.

Reds Reduce High Prices in East Germany

Berlin, July 16 (AP).—The Communist rulers of East Germany made a new bid for popular support today with sharp price cuts in food and retail goods in the Soviet zone and the east sector of Berlin.

The announcement was timed to benefit the Socialist Unity (Communist) Party's annual festival this week.

The price reductions on most items sold at the ration-free stores average up to 65 percent on food and about 35 percent on goods.

The Eastern press called the step "a result of our peace policy."

Some typical reductions in price:

White bread, one pound, from 4 marks down to 2.28 marks. (The Soviet zone east mark, though claiming nominal parity with the west mark at about 23 cents, still sells for 6 against 1 west mark.)

Salami, one pound, from 16 marks to 14 marks.

Butter, one pound, from 20 marks down to 14 marks.

Milk, one quart, from 3 marks down to 2 marks.

Chocolate, 100 grams (3½ ounces) from 9 marks down to 7 marks.

The percentage reductions are impressive but the prices still are too high for the average working man. Even with the new schedules, he has to work a day and a half to get a pound of butter or a pound of sausage, almost a full day for a bar of chocolate.

In the West, these items are within the reach of most wage earners.

The action on prices was used by the Eastern press to boom the "Party Day Congress" to be held from Thursday to next Sunday in the Soviet sector of Berlin.

Moscow Air Show Is Rained Out; No New Date Set

Moscow, July 16 (U.P.).—The giant air force show at Moscow's Tushino airport scheduled for this afternoon to commemorate the thirty-second anniversary of the founding of the Soviet air force was canceled because of bad weather.

Rain beat down on Moscow all night and the sky was overcast again this morning. The brief cancellation announcement, by the commission for the celebration of Soviet aviation day, did not set another date.

But Soviet papers were filled with air forces day articles, including one by Lieut. Gen. Vassili Stalin, commander of air forces in the Moscow military district and son of the Premier. Vassili also was deputy commander of the show.

Red 'Reforms' Quickly Follow Advancing Troops in Korea

By James E. Roper
United Press Staff Correspondent

The North Korean Communists are rushing military and industrial mobilization in the areas they capture—but they still are finding time to put their ideological "reforms" into operation.

Red broadcasts from Pyongyang and Seoul reveal that the invaders have ordered land reforms, frozen bank deposits, set up air raid precautions and seized arms held by civilians.

The broadcasts tell how emergency squads are restoring power lines that have been idle since the Communists cut off the flow of electricity into South Korea two years ago.

One broadcast said 480,000 North Korean youths—including 30,000 women—have volunteered to fight since the war began.

Another described how North Korean women are taking jobs in war factories. A later broadcast, however stated that all persons born between 1914 and 1935 have been ordered mobilized—presumably drafted.

A Red decree ordered land reform "enforced according to the principle of confiscation without compensation and distribution without compensation."

Farmers owning and tilling small plots will not be disturbed, and farmers who bought land from the South Korean government will not have to finish paying off long-term mortgages arranged under American guidance.

Bank deposits in Seoul were frozen, but banks opened for new business. The North Korean money was declared to be worth eight times as much as the South Korean money, and both will circulate on that basis.

North Korean troops were ordered to pay cash for food they need and make billeting arrangements through channels.

Pastor Calls For Prayers To Aid U. N.

The Rev. George E. Schnabel returned to his pulpit at Albright Memorial Evangelical United Brethren Church at 10:30 a. m. services yesterday after an absence of five weeks in Europe.

He called upon the congregation assembled at 14th and Rittenhouse sts. nw. to "consistently and earnestly remember the United Nations in prayer."

He told of one of his experiences near the Russian zone in Germany. A woman who had slipped over the border, recognizing him as a clergyman, asked two things of him:

"First, pray for all of us people who live under the shadow of fear and despair; and secondly, thank God every day that you live in the American zone, where the air is free and the life you live is without fear."

North Koreans Deny Killing War Prisoners as Charged

Tokyo (Monday), July 17 (AP).—North Korean army headquarters denied again today that North Korean Communist forces had murdered American prisoners of war.

Headquarters of Gen. Kim Il Sung declared the "People's army of the People's Democratic Republic is treating prisoners in accordance with the principles of humanitarianism and rules of international law."

The statement was broadcast by the Chinese Communist radio at Peiping and heard in Tokyo.

Apparently to offer proof of humane treatment of prisoners, Pyongyang radio in another broadcast last night aired the voice of what it said was a captured American.

The broadcast identified the voice as that of an American air officer named Sherman. There was no further identification.

The individual spoke in English and his remarkes were translated into Korean. He said he had been shot down over Pyongtaek but parachuted safely. He said he thought Pyongtaek still was in American and South Korean hands.

The captive American was quoted as saying he was afraid he was going to be killed, but had been well treated.

Point 4 Seen Paying Way in Long Run

By The Associated Press

President Truman's Point Four Program will not cost the American taxpayer anything in the long run, its director said yesterday.

Capus M. Waynick, State Department official in charge of the budding plan to benefit economically retarded areas, explained: "It is much more profitable to do business with a nation that is well developed economically than with those that are not."

Out of technical cooperation to promote economic well-being of underdeveloped countries will come, he said, "a business world in which the American taxpayer will benefit along with the rest of the area concerned."

But Waynick, answering questions in an interview for broadcast, said the program has a far broader aim. Told of reported apprehensions abroad that the United States wants to buy allies, or has imperialistic ambitions, the Director said:

"It must appear what the President intended it to be—a genuine gesture of high purpose of this Nation, sitting here in its own wealth, to be as helpful as it can in proving to the world that man does no need to become a chattel of the state in order to be safe and economically well-fed and housed, and well-clothed.

"And that is the intent of Point 4.

Waynick said in answer to a question that $35 million approved by the House for a start of the plan would be enough to get a good start the first year.

However, the Senate appropriations Committee has cut this figure to $10 million and the ultimate figure is not yet clear.

Waynick said this phase of the program would be concerned mainly with problems of food production, health and sanitation, and vocational education.

The United States intends to work with the United Nations as much as is practicable in the Point 4 program, Waynick said.

House Expected to Defeat Electoral Reform Move Today

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

A Senate-passed resolution favoring abolition of the Electoral College is scheduled for House consideration today, but is given no chance for adoption.

Out of courtesy to Representative Ed Gossett (D., Tex.), House Speaker Sam Rayburn (D., Tex.), agreed to let the measure come up for House consideration, but most of its supporters agree it cannot get the necessary two-thirds vote.

Alreaay passed by the Senate, the resolution would submit to the States a constitutional amendment that, if approved by 36 States within seven years, would abolish the Electoral College method of electing the President and the Vice President.

Instead, the electorial vote of each State would be split in proportion to the popular vote cast for the candidates. For example, in a State with 10 electoral votes, a candidate polling 60 percent of the popular vote would get six electoral votes and another getting 40 percent would receive four.

Under the present system, the candidate receiving the most popular votes gets the entire electoral vote of a State.

The House Rules Committee refused to give the bill the green light, but Rayburn said he would recognize Gossett to bring it up under suspension of the rules.

House Republican leader Joseph W. Martin, jr., of Massachusetts, was among those predicting defeat of the measure, as did some Administration leaders.

"I am against it," Martin said, "because it will give encouragement to formation of splinter, or minor parties and will give Southern States a veto over nomination of a President.

"It would hurt the Republican Party because it will not be able to pick up as many electoral votes in the South as we could lose in the big Northern States."

Successor to USO Planning More Facilities for Services

The Associated Services for the Armed Forces—successor to the USO—announced plans yesterday for expanding its facilities to parallel the growing military establishment.

Joseph D. Kaufman, chairman of the Washington area committee of the ASAF, said ASAF leaders of the 28 largest Community Chest cities in the U. S. would meet at the Pentagon Thursday to discuss their needs with military leaders.

Kaufman said ASAF officials hoped the obvious need for more off-post facilities would bring additional Community Chest support.

Coordinating activities of the YMCA, the National Catholic Community Service and the Jewish Welfare Board, the ASAF operates on funds allotted by the chest to the now defunct USO.

Kaufman pointed out that the budget was prepared before the Korean situation developed.

Robert Dechert, chairman of the national body, said in New York yesterday that ASAF considers its present facilities "inadequate to serve the moral and spiritual needs of an expanded military establishment."

Lay and professional leaders of ASAF and its member agencies have been conducting conferences in New York to determine means of getting present facilities up to strength and opening new ones, Dechert added.

These savings are a vital force in America's vast production and are helping to make opportunity for all of us.

3 ways to protect the buying power of your savings

1 Do your share to help lessen the pressures on Government for more spending. When we keep asking Government for more services, more benefits, we must expect to pay for them. Remember, it's your Government.

2 Back up all efforts to balance the budget. When Government lives beyond its income, prices tend to rise, reducing the buying power of your savings. Remember, you're the saver!

3 Support economy—elimination of waste. Whatever Government spends, you pay either directly in taxes or indirectly in prices. Remember, it's your money.

When Americans have the facts, they make the right decisions. That is why the life insurance companies and their agents bring you this message. To protect the buying power of savings is the job of each and every one of us.

also turned up evidence of widespread influence wielded by gamblers on the politics of Dade (Miami) County.

Members of the S. & G. Investment Syndicate, bookmaking-control firm, appeared to be particularly influential. Warren sent this telegram to State Attorney Glenn C. Mincer of Dade County:

"You are hereby directed to immediately make a full investigation of the operations of the S. & G. Syndicate and other gambling activities and submit your findings to the Dade County grand jury.

"I am requesting Sheriff Sullivan to assign to you two of his experienced criminal deputies for as long as you need them."

Warren wired Clark:

"A hearing will be held in the cabinet board room . . . Friday . . . to determine whether you are guilty of malfeasance in office in that you are part owner of a company which violated the law against gambling. You are requested to be present."

Warrens on Vacation

Copies of the three telegrams were delivered to newsmen by Warren's State highway patrol driver. The Governor and his wife have been "resting and fishing" at an undisclosed spot since Friday.

When Clark was confronted by Kefauver with Federal tax statements, he admitted he and his brother, Chief Deputy Sheriff Robert Clark, owned a two-thirds interest in the Broward Novelty Co.

Kefauver read tax statements showing the firm grossed more than $753,000 from the sale of bolita and from coin machines from 1945 through 1947. Both the bolita numbers racket and slot machines are illegal in Florida.

Clark said he was unaware the novelty firm was "messed up" in gambling.

few hundred yards from where Swann thought it was.

Following the boy's directions, the party found on the reservation a .22-caliber rifle, stolen from the locker of a school employe in the carpenter shop.

After questioning Swann, Dr. Jones said the most plausible account he could get was that Thorne was shot accidentally after the boys had gotten into an argument.

M. W. McFarlin, FBI chief in Baltimore, told the Associated Press that Swann said Thorne was hit twice when he, Swann, dropped the rifle, reloaded it, and dropped it again.

The body, McFarlin said, appeared to be hit once in the front and once in the back. The FBI is checking dental charts to establish positive identification.

Training school records listed Thorne's nearest relative as his mother, Mrs. Alice Thorne, 1605 Good Hope rd. se. Swann's nearest relation was listed as his grandmother, Mrs. Frances Brown, Fourth and Eastern aves., Takoma Park, Md.

Both boys had identical I.Q.'s 76, which Dr. Jones said is on the borderline of mental deficiency. Thorne came to the school about four years ago, Swann six months later.

The remains were removed to the Baltimore morgue where an autopsy has been scheduled. Swann was returned to the training school.

More Sugar

Sugar prices as well as the prices of many other foodstuffs are maintained at artificially high levels because the Government is withholding supplies from the market. In the case of sugar, however, this country is heavily dependent on outside sources of supply, and control over supply is effected by instructing the Secretary of Agriculture to determine how much sugar consumers will require in any given year and adjust import quotas accordingly. As a result of this system, the Department of Agriculture is always under pressure from consumers, especially industrial sugar users, to increase import quotas, while domestic sugar producers, for obvious reasons, favor low import quotas.

Sugar consumption during the first six months of this year has exceeded estimates, so that an increase in import quotas would have been necessary, even if the Korean outbreak had not resulted in accelerated buying and booming prices during the past two weeks. However, it is highly probable that the increase of 350,000 tons in the import quota, just announced by the Department of Agriculture, is higher than it would have been but for the war scare. The decision to raise the import quota will, at any rate, arrest the rise in prices, and the Department of Agriculture says that the enlarged supply "should be adequate" to meet the demands of domestic sugar consumers. This official assurance will, we trust, relieve fears of shortages. It should also prevent raids on grocery stores that result in housewives piling up sugar which they do not need at the expense of more disciplined customers who follow the sensible and patriotic practice of buying as usual.

Knowland Amendment

The Senate bill amending the old-age and survivors' insurance system carries a rider sponsored by Senator Knowland that would have far-reaching effects on the administration of the unemployment-compensation system. We trust that the amendment will be rejected by the conference committee to which the House and Senate old-age insurance bills have been referred (1) because it does not belong in a bill dealing with old-age insurance and welfare programs, (2) because it is a very complex measure introduced from the floor without prior hearings, and in face of the opposition of members of the Finance Committee, and (3) because it would make it possible for State officials and State courts to deny unemployment benefits to workers contrary to the standards set by Congress.

The Social Security Act provides States having approved unemployment compensation laws with Federal grants to pay for administering those laws. Employers in such States are also entitled to have 90 percent of the Federal unemployment compensation tax credited against contributions paid under State laws. To qualify for these grants and credits, however, the States must put their laws in conformity with labor standards set up by Federal law. For instance, unemployment benefits cannot be withheld for refusal to accept new work if the proffered job is vacant because of a labor dispute, if the job seeker is required to join a company union or resign from a bona fide union, or if the conditions of work and pay are out of line with prevailing standards.

Constant vigilance is required to make sure that, after the State laws have been approved, State agencies and officials comply with these requirements by proper interpretation of the law. Under the Knowland amendment, however, the Secretary of Labor could not charge a State with failure to conform with Federal requirements until an appeal had been taken to the highest State courts.

According to Senator Knowland, the amendment "simply postpones action by the Secretary of Labor until the State judiciary has spoken; it does not deprive him of any power he now has but merely restricts its premature exercise." In refutation, opponents of the amendment declare that the only authority remaining under the amendment, so far as labor standards are concerned, would be to insure the carrying out by State unemployment compensation officials of the orders of the State courts. No action could be taken, as at present, to prevent State agencies from denying benefits in contravention of State laws as well as Federal requirements, unless or until cases reach the State courts. And it is pointed out that most administrative decisions never reach the courts. Moreover, if appeals were taken, the only question at issue would be the interpretation of the State law, and not the application of Federal standards.

In short, the amendment would, as Senator Kerr stated in the course of debate, "destroy the Federal minimum requirements in the program which has been created by Federal legislation . . ." As a matter of fact, that appears to be the real purpose of the Knowland amendment, which is backed by various West Coast employers associations.

No Way To Economize

A 10 percent cut, possibly more, in nondefense expenditures of the Federal Government could, no doubt, be made by a careful, selective pruning process without substantial impairment of the efficiency of Government departments. But the amendment to the omnibus appropriations bill offered by Senators Bridges and Byrd calling for over-all 10 percent cuts in appropriations for most civilian departments and agencies affords no assurance that reductions would be limited to nonessential expenditures. On the contrary, some departments, such as State and Commerce, whose budgets would be pared, will have additional work thrust on them as a result of the international crisis. Moreover, no allowance is made for the effect of the proposed amendment on departments and agencies whose appropriations have already been cut below budget estimates. Nor is it possible to determine the exact amount of the reductions that would be required if the amendment were to be passed, since the 10 percent cut would apply to the amount carried in the appropriations bill finally passed by House and Senate. Estimates of savings are for that reason rough; and so are the methods proposed for achieving them.

The Senate Appropriations Committee has already reduced State Department appropriations more than 10 percent below budget estimates and cut appropriations for the Commerce Department more than 12 percent. If the committee recommendations were to be incorporated in the final bill along with the proposed additional 10 percent cut, these two departments would have their appropriations reduced 20 percent or more. The 10 percent cut would also apply to ECA, although the Senate Appropriations Committee has reduced its appropriation, too, by 10 percent. A reduction of such size—20 percent—would, as Senator Lucas points out, "give aid and comfort to the Kremlin in Moscow and do quite the opposite for our allies and our friends in Europe whom we are trying to help at this particular time."

It would be inconceivable folly to make cuts of such magnitude in the foreign-aid program, retarding economic recovery in the countries of western Europe at a critical time when they are forced to strengthen their defenses at home and have joined the fight to resist aggression abroad. The United States not only has a moral obligation to fulfill promises to assist European recovery, but it has a selfish interest in furthering a recovery that increases the value of the material aid our allies will be able to render in the United Nations' battle against militant communism.

The Washington Post would applaud any money-saving program limited to genuinely nonessential domestic civilian expenditures. But the proposal before the Senate draws no rational line between routine spending and war activities. It makes no distinctions between executive establishments that have tight budgets and those liberally supplied with funds, and it disregards the effect on our national defense program of drastic cuts in foreign aid. These are reasons enough for summary rejection of the Bridges-Byrd amendment.

Both Sides Of The Street

The clever thing about Soviet propaganda is that, like a well-organized vaudeville program or well-edited picture magazine or a well-constructed political party platform, there is something in it to flatter almost every taste and prejudice.

In this country and in western Europe the Communists, as you know, have been making much of their steadfast devotion to peace in the face of every conceivable provocation by the agents of Wall Street imperialism, and of their deep humanitarian concern about the probable consequences of an atomic war. Through their fellow travelers and through numerous "innocents" they have been circulating copies of the Stockholm petition to outlaw the use of the atomic bomb in international warfare, and are said to have obtained millions of signatures.

At the World Power Conference in London the Soviet delegate, Dr. V. A. Golubtsov, observed piously that it is well known that Russia is interested in atomic development only as far as it will serve the interests of peaceful progress and the betterment of human life. The Russian scientists and their government look forward, not to the blowing up of populous cities and the slaughter of hundreds of thousands of human beings, but to the destruction of mountains for the improvement of river beds and to the creation of vast irrigation systems that will cause the most formidable deserts to burst into bloom. All this, Dr. Golubtsov contrasted to the attitude of the American imperialists and Wall Street warmongers whose first concern is to produce atomic weapons and who consider the application of atomic energy to productive uses a secondary aim at best.

This is a pretty fair sample of the sort of stuff that the Kremlin's propaganda mills have recently been manufacturing for export consumption. The line spun out for domestic consumption is slightly different. It, too, of course, emphasizes the peace-loving purposes of the Soviet regime; but it also utters warnings of the suicidal determination of the Western warmongers to upset at any cost the Kremlin's plans to increase the material happiness of the Russian people. Thus things may come to a point where even the patient and long suffering Soviet leaders may be obliged (purely in self-defense, of course) to toss a few atom bombs on American cities.

Writing to the tune of "By Jingo, If We Do!" in the Russian naval newspaper, Red Fleet, Comrade B. N. Yurev, an aeronautical expert, explains how easy it all would be:

> The American-English instigators of a new war want to violate our peaceful construction, but they miscalculate. If we are attacked, the enemy will be crushingly rebuffed. We have atomic energy and heavy bombers and rocket fighters and lots of other things. Who of all the flyers first dared to blast an air path across the North Pole to North America? Who in all aviation's history first rammed an enemy plane at night?

The answer to Comrade Yurev's questions of course is that the Russians did it, just as they have done almost everything worth doing, long before anyone else dreamed about doing it. And the paper goes on to indicate the vast quantities of armaments and warlike apparatus that are being turned out under the current five-year plan by Russian industry under direction of the peace-loving Politburo.

Heirless Property

The Alien Property Custodian now has in his possession certain property which formerly belonged to victims of Nazi persecution who left no heirs—presumably because their heirs also fell victim to the Nazis. This property differs from the enemy-owned assets seized during the war by the Alien Property Custodian. It was not owned by our enemies and cannot properly therefore be catalogued among their seizable assets. Recognizing this, Congress passed a law soon after the end of the war permitting the Alien Property Custodian to return property to any surviving former owner who was himself a victim of racial, religious or political persecution in an enemy country, or to the surviving heir of such a former owner. That law failed, however, to deal with the property of victims who had no surviving heirs. A bill to remedy this omission has been passed unanimously by the Senate but has failed of action in the House.

The bill adopted in the Senate authorizes the President to designate organizations as eligible to recover property which belonged to heirless Nazi victims and is now held by the Alien Property Custodian. Such organizations would be required to devote any funds they received to the relief and rehabilitation of surviving members of the group to which the former owner of the property belonged. The organizations would be appropriately supervised and their accounts audited. This seems to us to be the most fitting and effective form of restitution possible.

The measure comes up on the consent calendar of the House today. We hope the House will act upon it favorably. When it was last brought up, an objection prevented action. If critics of the bill feel that its provisions need tightening in any respect to insure proper disposition of the recovered property, they can propose amendments to that effect. But they ought not to sabotage the bill as a whole or allow it to die of neglect at the session's end. It offers a form of restoration which can give valuable aid to surviving victims of Nazism. At the same time it frees the United States Government from the imputation that it would be willing to profit from the property of families exterminated by Nazi brutality.

New Looks

The realities of the Korean war have outmoded the controversy over whether the fashion industry should give women a new-look-a-year to create wardrobe obsolescence and meet sales competition of motor cars and refrigerators. Nevertheless, gradual fashion change goes on, as always. Reports from the New York fall showings indicate that a cycle of style has been completed since 1947, when the dramatic postwar "new look," featuring long billowing skirts, caused Nation-wide upheaval in clothes closets and pocketbooks. Now the sheath dress and the pencil silhouette are reported fashion's favorites.

Some fashion historians have a theory that the narrow, practical, fabric-saving styles accompany times of stress and crisis. Yet others maintain that women's fashions, when the thunderings of trouble are heard, tend rather to accentuate femininity. However that may be, there is one "new look"—incidentally with the currently popular pencil silhouette—that women might well be considering. That is the uniform of the Women's Armed Forces. These forces are now of skeleton strength. They were not recruited up to their needs in the last war. Yet any future national emergency would create great demand for a trained, disciplined group of women, especially on the home front, which in modern warfare is likely to be a battlefield. The Korean incident has shown the need of building up the Nation's strength in all fields, including both women and men in uniform.

A KNIGHT, GROWN UP

He listened with his eyes on fire
When grown-ups told a fairy tale.
They never guessed he was a knight
And wore a suit of silver mail.

His steed was hidden from the eyes
That told the tale with words alone,
And all the swords were silver flame,
But none was brighter than his own.

He's twenty now and much like those
Who never wore the silver mail
Who never rode a silver steed
When searching for the Holy Grail.

And he is wise as they were wise
To wear today a suit of sack,
To let his sword go down in dust
Because a horse is brown or black.

"War Of The Mind"

Your July 11 editorial, "War of the Mind," commends the State Department on the proposal to spend 100 million dollars on a program of skillful propaganda ot the nonfree world. It is imperative to get the truth across to our friends of a free world such as India, Indonesia and other nonwhite peoples.

I submit, however, that although we are making substantial progress with relation to full citizenship for our own peoples of color, there are yet too many incidents occurring on the debit side to convince our friends around the world that democracy means more than what their false friends offer.

Recently the State Department's Voice of America used the success of Negro athletes and the apparent availability of competition in all sports to all citizens as evidence of our liberality. Yet every day here in Washington colored residents and colored visitors report happenings to negate our claims. A few Boy Scouts returning home through Washington find themselves separated from their companions and denied meals at hotels around Union Station. Colored peoples are yet refused meals at most of our licensed hostelries for public accommodation.

The State Department may point with some degree of effectiveness to the progress we are making but until some almost revolutionary changes occur in our attitudes toward our own citizens, the State Department's "war of the mind" in far away lands will be stymied. Our soldiers are pouring into lands occupied by colored people. We need a stronger and more telling Voice of America operating here as a part of our program to "counteract ingrained misconceptions about this country" in other lands. E. B. HENDERSON.

Lines on Korea

Certain points in Mrs. Yaukey's letter of July 10 present identifiable characteristics. As, for instance, (1) "In Korea we are again supporting a 'reactionary' government without the cooperation of the governed." According to Moscow, we have never supported anything but "reactionary" governments without the cooperation of the governed. Also, (2) ". . . Judging by 'history' we can now deduce the simple fact that we cannot 'sell' democracy anywhere by arms." Well, anyway, that's what Moscow—and Mrs. Yaukey—say; most of us, of course, had been unaware, until now, that we had used any arms in "selling" democracy to the South Koreans.

There is also (point 3): ". . . We are now becoming more and more involved in holding a Far Eastern military line against 'ideas' which are only partly Communist. . ." Our boys, who thought they saw several North Korean divisions armed with guns, tanks and planes, shooting up South Koreans, have quite obviously, been victims of some fantastic hallucinations; those were the "ideas" filtering down into South Korea from the thirty-eighth parallel.

And, finally: ". . . The first and most urgent equipment of the United Nations is a mobile group of the world's best trained 'mediators' to be instantly flown to any point of conflict. . ." In making this suggestion, Mrs. Yaukey must surely have overlooked an extremely large accumulation of "historical evidence"—certainly, she must know, as well as anyone else, that no one ever has, and no one ever will, "mediate" a conflict which the Communists believe they can themselves resolve to their own advantage.

Rhee's Regime

As reported by American observers, President Rhee's government was inefficient and corrupt. Recent elections had shown that it had lost the support of the people. The poor economic condition of the country was aggravated by an artificial division into two nations. With the exception of President Rhee's governing clique, almost all of the people of South Korea desired reunification with North Korea. Mr. Rhee's government had arrested emissaries sent by the North Koreans to negotiate this unification. President Rhee had openly threatened aggression on the North Koreans. These are some of the facts which should be plainly presented to the American people so that they can decide how far this country should go in support of Mr. Rhee's regime.

Our overemphasis of Russia's support of North Korea, and our fear of communism, have blinded us to the basic causes of the war. If the American people were given a clear statement of the facts, I believe they would force a revision of our interventionist policy.

"Voice" At Home

It has always seemed faintly comical that the "Voice of America" broadcasts were inaccessible to the American public for whom it claimed to speak. There should be official resumes in our papers, and English language editions of broadcasts over the regular stations. If the news is not too secret to broadcast to the rest of the world, it shouldn't be too secret to let us in on.

We need more published statements like those appearing in the current Latex Corp. advertisement. The quotation of Henry L. Stimson, "The only deadly sin I know is cynicism" is only too true. Defeatism is one of our greatest dangers as we face a totalitarian enemy. The free peoples of the earth must have a strong and realistic faith in the eventual victory of the forces of good.

Knowledge is essential to this kind of faith, so why not a little "Voice of America" here at home? We need something similar to a "library of information" to help spread information about democracy and how it works.

Chiang In Formosa

Now that the United Nations has a police force in the Far East on a mission of freedom and justice, why don't they pluck Chiang Kai-shek out of Formosa? He is there by force alone. Nothing would help the cause of true freedom more; nothing we could do would help so much to reinstate in the people of Asia a belief in the Western powers as true supporters of freedom. IVA J. War Of Ideas

How are we to account for the admitted success of the Russians and for our own admitted failure in the war of ideas? What are the reasons for the strange appeal of Communist doctrine in this struggle for the loyalties and imagination of men? Why in the field of public relations are we so proficient when it is a question of selling commodities like automobiles and refrigerators, and so ineffective when it is a question of selling American tenets and beliefs?

One reason, it seems to me, is that we are essentially pragmatic and tend to minimize the power of ideas, placing practice above theory, action above words. We readily forget that communism is a creed and that nothing can be gained and conclusively settled by force of arms unless we also strike with telling force at Communist dogma and dialectic. Communism, like national socialism, thrives on the thwarted ambitions, false hopes and fond illusions of the idealistic, the underprivileged, the backward and oppressed. It is for these that we must first unmask the Marxist fraud by a sincere appeal to dignity and common sense. And it is to these that we must seek to give new hope by presenting factual evidence of our true equality in an economy of private ownership and competitive enterprise.

To combat effectively the Marxist creed we most certainly need a greatly enlarged information program replete with moving picture screens, transmitters, libraries, information centers, press facilities and other technological devices and media for the free-flowing communication of ideas. We need education and information specialists and we need appropriations—greatly increased appropriations — for counteracting Communist lies and for proclaiming the truth about American achievements and aims.

But all this, important though it is, is not enough. More important still is a world ideal, a faith, high enough and strong enough to capture the imagination of all. The ideal has already been conceived. The mind of every civilized human being is already pregnant with it. It is the ideal of international production and exchange under the aegis of the United Nations.

If we can show that Communist Russia and Communist Russia alone stands in the way of United Nations success and international economic prosperity; if we can show beyond the shadow of a doubt that without the small group of sadistic doctrinaires and false prophets in the Kremlin there could be launched as of this moment an era of unparalleled world-wide industrial expansion and progress that would immediately increase the living standards of every individual both here and abroad, on the farm and in the mine, in the factory and wherever men and women work, there need be no fear of Marxist revolutions.

Ideas alone, of course, will not be enough. But, properly spread, they will immeasurably lighten the task before us. We must carry this message through not only to the Russian people by all possible means, and to the masses held in ignorance and fear behind the Iron Curtain, but it is this message we must communicate to the hesitant, to the skeptical, to the wavering third force on the borderline between the free and the enslaved. We must bring this message home to all. We must channel it through every medium at our command. Only in this way can we hope to win the propaganda war.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph and Stewart Alsop

Valley Of The Shadow

THERE IS A VERY simple measure of the gravity of the present world crisis, which the Administration is still concealing behind the bland facade of business-as-usual. "Just in case," two additional B-29 groups have already been dispatched to England, and the Joint Chiefs of Staff have ordered a second large carrier to the Mediterranean. The case envisioned by these measures is nothing more nor less than the outbreak of a third world war.

In the last report in this space, the reasons were given why the betting in Washington is still against the masters of the Kremlin daring to unleash a general war at this time. The fact must also be recorded, however—and this again indicates the gravity of the current crisis—that even the passage of twenty-four hours has been enough to shorten the odds considerably.

Experience in Korea is the first cause of this change in odds. Before the North Korean armies began, all too effectively, to prove their worth, the American order of battle experts habitually regarded all satellite armies as virtually worthless.

THE YUGOSLAV PROBLEM, in particular, had always been dismissed rather airily, with the bland forecast that Marshal Tito's 30 divisions could whip the tar out of the combined forces of Yugoslavia's satellite neighbors, Bulgaria, Romania and Hungary. It was therefore assumed that Yugoslavia would never be in danger, except for an overt invasion by the Red army. Now, on the contrary, while there is still no sign of any movement of Russian troops, the Bulgars, Hungarians and even Romanians are regarded as serious threats, in view of the North Koreans' showing.

Meanwhile, the pressure on Yugoslavia has also been increasing steadily, since just before the Korean attack. At that time, heavy satellite troop concentrations were first observed on the Bulgarian border. A little later, in language reminiscent of Hitler's attacks of Czech and Polish "aggressors," the Cominform journal for the first time accused Marshal Tito of receiving heavy shipments of American arms—a flat lie, of course—and of accepting these arms in preparation for an attack on his neighbors. More recently, serious border incidents have occurred.

If it had not been for the aggression in Korea, these signs and symptoms in the Balkans would now be dismissed as mere moves in the war of nerves. This is still the most probable interpretation. Yet if certain of the more pessimistic analysts are correct, the Kremlin may have decided upon a second aggression, and have thus commenced the third world war, in the short interval before these words are printed. And there are good reasons for this sudden plunge, from the jolliest optimism to the bleakest pessimism.

It cannot too often be repeated that the essential, the all-important effect of the Kremlin's aggression in Korea has been to demand the commitment there of all the ordinary strength of the United States. Neither Britain, nor France, nor any of our other allies presently possesses any reserves of military power worth mentioning. And with all the ordinary strength of America being irrevocably pinned down in Korea, the Western alliance against Soviet aggression has no reserves anywhere, except the U. S. strategic Air Force and the atomic stockpile.

That, of course, is the reason why the American Chiefs of Staff have sent additional strategic air groups, and no doubt atomic bombs as well, to Britain. The value of this last deterrent must be increased to the maximum, by preparing to strike with maximum force at the shortest notice; just as an additional carrier is needed in the Mediterranean, in order to be ready to support Tito at the shortest notice.

NONE THE LESS, it is impossible to exaggerate the danger of the present situation, in which our strategic air power is the only Western counterweight to all the massed strength of the Red army, with all its numerous supporting arms, and all its many satellite auxiliaries. The Kremlin's temptation to exploit this staggering opportunity in Yugoslavia and elsewhere is also being daily increased, by every additional day of business-as-usual in America. With the Hitlers and Stalins of this world, you do not avoid war on the Baldwin-Chamberlain system, by ostentatiously failing to prepare to fight.

Until the defenses of the West have been rebuilt, our time of danger will continue. Let there be no mistake about this. The politicians who now seek to trace the Korea mess to Yalta, or to the follies of our China policy, are as ignorant as they are partisan. Korea was attacked, not because of any past history, but because of our present military weakness. There will be heavy risk of another attack, and of the general war that will then inevitably ensue, as long as that military weakness is not remedied.

A-Bombs For Korea

How many more of our boys are going to get it in the face while their hands are tied behind their backs before we hit 'em with the bomb?

Today and Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The Shortage of Men

A VERY substantial enlargement of the American military effort—perhaps by something like 35 percent in terms of money appropriated—is very plainly indicated. There is no doubt at all that the American economy, which has been growing rapidly in productivity, is capable of producing the extra military goods. The principal bottleneck, assuming that the allocations of steel and the like is effectively made, will be in industrial manpower.

Lippmann

BUT THE production of military goods is not in itself military power. There must be the trained men to use the weapons. Now as the world crisis mounts and the race of armaments is intensified it becomes ever plainer that the Atlantic community, though long on productivity, is short in manpower, and very short in military manpower.

In this critical respect Korea is the world situation in miniature. The anti-Communist forces that are able and are willing to fight are outnumbered. The defense of the free world must be achieved therefore by quality which is able to overcome quantity. We are not big enough to overwhelm our opponents by the massing of military power.

Since we cannot hope to be bigger, our fate depends on whether we can be better—whether a comparatively few can be armed and trained to deal with great numbers, whether we can manage our affairs so that we do not have to expend much of the manpower in which we are so short where no decision will ever be reached.

THE PRACTICAL issue, which is posed by the shortage of military manpower, has to do with the enforcement of the Truman Doctrine in Asia—whether, that is to say, we are to develop the forces to fight campaigns, as in Korea, in other areas that are threatened not by Russia herself but by satellites and by revolutionary forces.

This issue should not be confused with (1) the problem of reinforcing MacArthur in Korea in order to achieve an honorable conclusion, or with (2) the need to raise the level of our strategic forces in being as against the threat of war with the Soviet Union itself, or with (3) the need to increase and to accelerate the delivery of the most modern defensive weapons to our allies in western Europe. These three things all need to be done, and to do them adequately will require just about all the extra military effort we could make without a total mobilization for a total war.

THE ENFORCEMENT of the Truman Doctrine for Asia in the Korean style—that is by engaging American ground forces—is something that we cannot afford not to think about deeply. For here the problem of military manpower has to be faced.

We need not be ashamed to face it. In fact it is our duty to face it—to face it, as Churchill faced it in the war when he husbanded so carefully the young men, of whom England had not enough, the young men on whom, he was well aware, depended the survival of the British race.

LET US then keep clearly in mind that the military manpower of the Soviet Union, which can be put into battle, is greater than our own. Let us never forget that the Soviet forces are still entirely uncommitted, but that the main part of the French army in being, most of the British forces in being, and now a large part of the American forces in being are already committed. They are in fact locked up in places where, in case of a general war, they would not be military assets but indeed heavy military liabilities.

This is a far more serious strategic reverse to the Western world than any of the nasty and painful tactical defeats we have suffered in Korea.

FOR THAT fundamental reason, which, were the manpower situation spelled out in detail, would be even more compelling, we must refuse to be sucked into the Asiatic mainland. We need to found our position in the Pacific, now as in the past, on naval power. That means that planes, warships, and troops for landing parties operate from floating and moving advance bases, and are supported from securely held American rear bases. They are not required to defend, or to occupy, or to govern foreign countries like Japan, Korea, Formosa. And, therefore, they do not have to tie themselves up irrevocably in all sorts of places which in case of war would have to be defended and would have to be fed and yet in all probability would not be of any decisive strategic importance.

Emergency Hospital ambulance and Health Department Ambulance No. 1 arrived at the dock at about the same time the speedboat did.

A resuscitator revived Gallas within 10 minutes. As he came to, Dr. T. F. Hudgins of Emergency Hospital asked, "How do you feel, Johnnie?" Gallas responded with a lunge for the edge of the dock. It took three firemen, two policemen and the doctor to hold the lieutenant.

The 6-foot, 190-pound officer lunged a second time and the doctor called for ropes. Dr. Hudgins said Gallas would be taken to Gallinger Hospital for mental observation. Hospital officials said Gallas would be transferred to Walter Reed.

Wide Power to Hire Civilians Given Major Defense Agencies

gency plan will be given "temporary indefinite appointments." The appointees will not be under the Civil Service retirement system and neither will they be permitted to gain permanent Civil Service status under the present arrangements which are subject to change. However, a person on a Civil Service eligible list will have the option of refusing a temporary appointment in a war agency to accept a probational appointment in a non-defense agency that would lead to permanent status.

6. Civil Service is sending members of its own staff to each of the war agencies to assist them in speeding up recruiting, setting up job standards, fixing salaries, etc.

Meantime, Defense officials are setting up their own priority system to hire civilian personnel. No. 1 preference will be given to the thousands of experienced and able civilians who were fired only a few months ago under Defense Secretary Johnson's economy program. No. 2 priority will be given to persons on Civil Service eligible lists, and finally, persons from the outside who have neither Civil Service status nor who have passed competitive tests, but who meet standards to be determined.

To Be Kept to Minimum

The major part of new Defense hiring will be in Army arsenals, Navy shipyards, Air Force bases, etc. Hiring here will be kept to a minimum.

No official could be found yesterday who would even hazard a guess on how many new civilians would be hired under the emergency authority. It all depends on how the critical world situation develops.

In the first place, the present budget now before the Senate doesn't provide funds for additional civilian jobs. Money for a considerable expansion of the civilian force is expected to be asked by the President, perhaps later this week.

The relaxing of Civil Service rules for the war agencies was looked upon yesterday by some officials as merely one step to alter present Federal personnel practices, if the Korean crisis worsens. They forsee these additional developments:

An extension of the emergency hiring authority to other Federal agencies; a suspension of the Civil Service program of firing war service and temporary appointees who either failed to pass or to earn a high enough grade on competitive tests, and a complete overhaul of Civil Service's competitive examining plans in order to devote more time to war agency recruiting.

Watchmaker, Ill, Calls Hearse, Then Slays Self

Charleston, W. Va., July 16 (AP).—Frank Holden was so confident his second suicide attempt would be a success that he called a hearse before taking poison, State police reported today.

The 58-year-old watchmaker, ill for some time, had been rushed in an ambulance to a Charleston hospital Friday night after drinking poison. He was released later.

Last night, Corpl. R. G. Coen of the State police said, Holden telephoned an undertaker and ordered a hearse sent to his home at nearby Chesapeake. He called back to give more explicit directions and added he would be dead when the hearse got there.

Holden was dead when an ambulance arrived.

Korean Aides Here Work a 15-Hour Day

By Lee Grove
Post Reporter

Members of the little Korean Embassy here have been working like the proverbial beavers since the invasion began June 25.

"There have been no Saturdays or Sundays for us," said Ambassador John Myun Chang.

The first word he and other members of the embassy staff had of the invasion was about 9 p. m. June 25, when they heard news of the Communist onslaught on American radio programs.

The Koreans were telephoning each other the news when the Ambassador received a call from President Syngman Rhee about an hour later that confirmed the report.

Since then the work day begins about 9 a. m. and continues until perhaps midnight.

"Fortunately, we have good secretaries," Dr. Chang said, "we did not ask them to work overtime, but they have."

None of the diplomats has heard from his kin in Korea. All are worried, but they are not trying to get in touch with them.

"If the Communists knew where they were, they would try to kill them," explained Dr. Chang.

There are 11 persons on the embassy staff, including the purchasing commission headed by Sae Sun Kim.

They have three rooms for a chancery, and three rooms for the purchasing commission in the Columbian Building—where many occupants are lawyers—at 416 Fifth st. nw.

The Koreans' business quarters have been there since January, 1949. The quarters are temporary — a chancery building is being built at the rear of the embassy on Sheridan Circle, which should be ready in August—and it definitely is not luxurious.

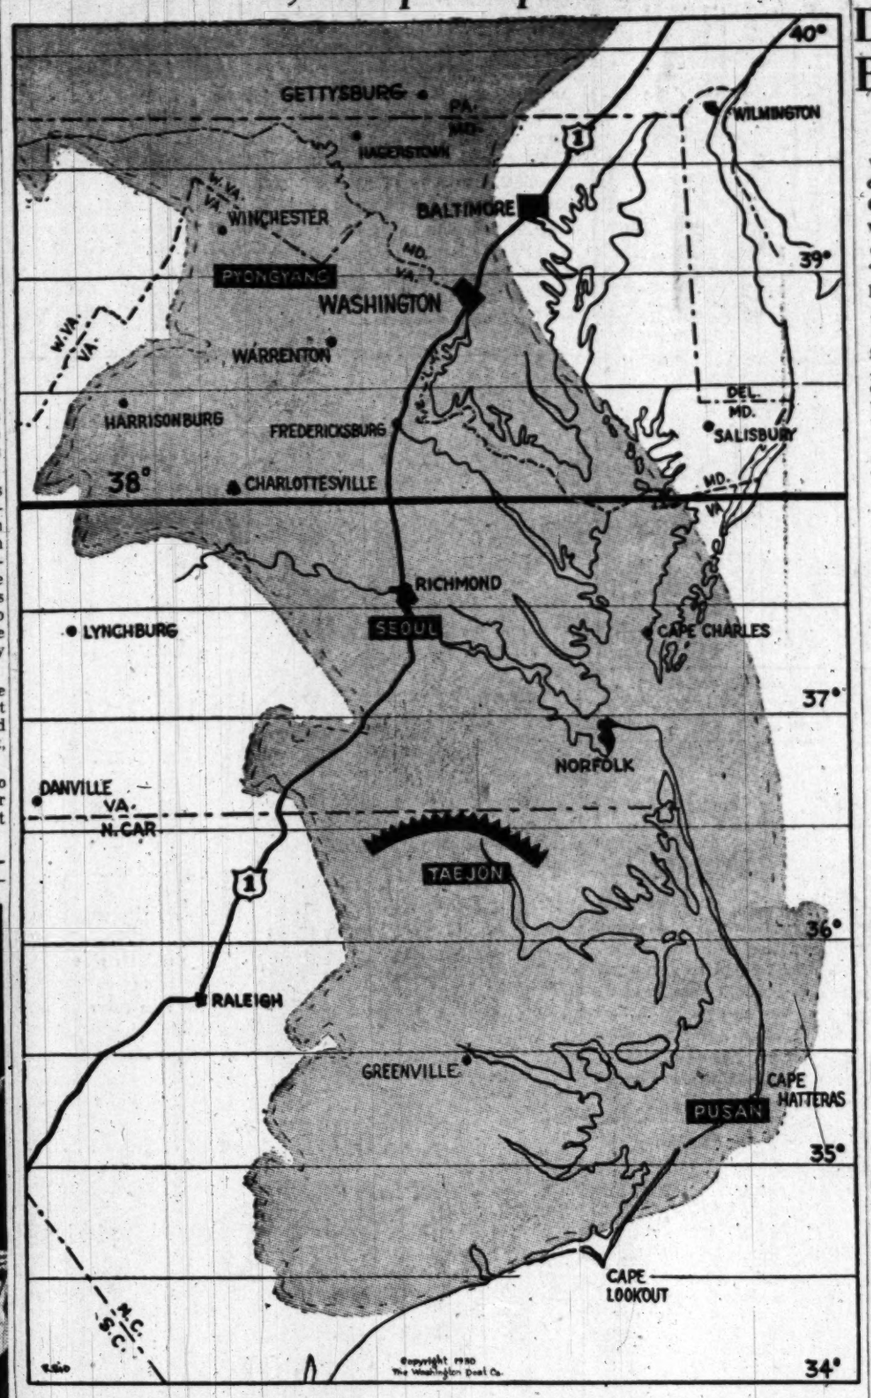
Since the start of the invasion, mail has more than tripled. Several score Americans in all parts of the country have written the embassy offering their services, as have Koreans.

There are about 10,000 Koreans living under the American flag—about 50 in Washington; 3000 on the American mainland, chiefly on the West coast, and 7000 in Hawaii. A number of them have written to inquire about relatives at home. As there has been no personal mail from Korea since the invasion began, the embassy has been unable to help them.

Despite the situation at home and his fatigue, Dr. Chang is not discouraged. Not with the United Nations behind his government, he said.

He sees the war as leading to the unification of all Korea under "the only legal government," that of Syngman Rhee.

Korea and U. S., a Map Comparison . . .



STRIKING PARALLEL—The map of Korea indicated by the shaded area has been super-imposed on a map of the Eastern United States at exactly the same latitude. The black sawtooth line locates the present Communist assault on Taejon. The thirty-eighth parallel which forms the boundary between Communist Northern Korea and democratic Southern Korea also runs just slightly south of Charlottesville. The two rival Korean capitals—Pyongyang and Seoul—are roughly about as far apart as Washington and Richmond. The American area covered by the Korean map was a principal battleground of the American Civil War. But there are major differences, especially in terrain. In Korea, the terrain is rugged, while here it is mostly rolling. And Korean summer weather is much wetter

New Council Deputy Quiet But Effective

By James M. Minifee

When Charles M. Spofford was nominated United States deputy on the North Atlantic Council, the reaction in Europe was distinctly unfavorable. It could be summed up in this way: "We wanted a big name. You have down-graded the post by appointing an unknown."

It evoked a very striking reply from Secretary of State Dean Acheson: "I don't know of any one who could do the job better than he can do it and of very few who could do it as well."

The fact that he is unknown, or relatively so, must be laid at "Chuck" Spofford's door.

At one time during the war virtually the entire civilian population of the central Mediterranean area depended on him for their food, supplies and general well-being. He was appointed in February, 1944, to be assistant chief of staff, A. F. H. Q., Algiers.

He Headed Large Staff

In that capacity he headed an Anglo-American staff responsible for matters affecting civil populations in the Mediterranean theater, including civilan supply for the area. He took care of everything but his own publicity.

What supplies for civilians could be coaxed out of home governments, "Chuck" Spofford obtained. What shipping could be diverted from the Army, he diverted.

He realized the psychological significance of a shipload of wheat arriving at Palermo, the capital of Sicily, at the time when frightened Sicilian peasants were squirreling away their grain because of Axis-inspired rumors that it would be requisitioned and shipped away.

It was quite a trick to get the Anglo-American authorities to send that grain ship into Palermo, but it convinced the peasants. Wheat started flowing into the towns.

Never Took Credit

Mr. Spofford never bothered about taking credit for what he did. The millions of civilians whose welfare depended on him never knew his name.

His natural and characteristic modesty was intensified by the bizarre qualities of some of his associates. When Allied troops went into Sicily they were closely followed by officers of the Allied Military Government. Mr. Spofford, only 41 at the time, headed this organization. It had contrived to attract some of the strangest characters ever assembled under one command.

Over all these characters, Mr. Spofford ruled quietly, tactfully, diplomatically.

WORLD'S SAFEST OIL SUPPLY

The safest easily reached oil in the World available for international trade is that located in the Mexican and Texas Gulf oil fields.

Guarded by Florida and the Island of Cuba, forming a natural barrier, Mexico's ports of Tampico, Tuxpan and Minatitlan constitute three safe and important points of supply, fed through a system of pipelines by the now legendary oil deposits of Panuco, Ebano, The Golden Lane and Poza Rica in the North, El Plan, Tonala, Filisola and others in the South.

Eighteen new fields have been recently discovered, some of which are located in the Northeastern States of Mexico bordering the U.S.A. with an additional important production.

With two large refineries recently constructed to take care of Mexico's requirements in the Central Plateau, our Coastal Refineries at Tampico are being modernized and will soon offer the World additional quantities of refined oils of the highest quality. Mexico has thus become a safe and dependable international supplier of crude and refined oils.

Dutch Pair Show Gifts For Music

By Paul Hume

Netherlands Night brought two extremely young but gifted artists to the Watergate last night.

Jurriaan Andriessen, Dutch composer and conductor, directed the National Symphony Orchestra. His pianist was Miss Fania Chapiro, who played the solo part in the Beethoven E Flat Concerto. Neither musician is much past the mid-twenties, but the concert was a mature sounding success.

The high point of the program was the young conductor's own symphony, titled the Berkshire Symphonies. Only three of the four movements of the work were played, due to the short time for rehearsal. They are impressive both in actual accomplishment, and in promise for the future.

Miss Chapiro handled the piano easily in Beethoven's vigorous concerto. Her best work was in more lyrical moments, when she was not tempted to rush, and her tone was sufficient for the phrases. But she need slittle to make her present playing suitable for the concerto, except the growth that mature insight will give her.

Rites Honor Our Lady Of Mt. Carmel

More than 900 members of religious orders and lay people marched in a procession in honor of Our Lady of Mount Carmel at Catholic University yesterday.

The procession preceded a solemn high mass in the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception at 11 a. m.

Other tributes in Roman Catholic Churches throughout the city marked the 700th anniversary of the bestowal, according to Catholic tradition, of the Brown Scapular by the Virgin Mary upon St. Simon Stock, a Carmelite superior, on July 16, 1251, at Cambridge, England.

Four members of the Carmelite, Dominican, Augustinian and Franciscan orders bore a flower-strewn statue of Our Lady of Mount Carmel in the procession.

A choir of Carmelite seminarians sang the Mass under the direction of the Rev. Russell Woollen. Procession members, who filled the mosaic-walled Shrine, responded.

The Dev. Dr. Godfrey Dickman, O.S.B., of St. John's Abbey in Collegeville, Minn., said in his sermon that Pope Pius XII ranked the wearing of the brown scapular as the "most favored" devotion because of its simplicity.

At the Discalced Carmelite Monastery, 2131 Lincoln rd. ne., the Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, Archbishop of the Catholic Diocese of Washington, celebrated a pontifical mass at 8 a. m. Closing devotions at 8 p. m. included recitation of the rosary and a sermon by the Rev. Columban McGough, prior of the monastery.

Triumph of Anatomic Design is a tremendous success!

©1950 KAISER-FRAZER SALES CORP., WILLOW RUN, MICH.

Way back in February, the first models of the brilliant new 1951 Kaiser were publicly previewed in major cities across the nation.

The reaction was immediate. Spontaneous enthusiasm from all who saw this great new car. The same from our own dealers, and dealers of other makes, many of whom eagerly sought out the Kaiser franchise.

Then, beginning on May 10th, the 1951 Kaiser was put to the acid test: it was offered generally for sale to the American public in dealer showrooms from coast-to-coast.

The result? Everywhere, new owners are acclaiming its spectacular, low-slung beauty... its landscape-sweeping Control Tower Vision... its easy-to-enter High Bridge Doors... its road-hugging low center of gravity:.. and the sensational power and performance of its new Supersonic Engine.

The unprecedented demand for these new cars clearly establishes the 1951 Kaiser as the clear-cut value leader in the medium price field. Indeed, the majority of buyers of new 1951 Kaisers are trading-in other makes... some are 1950 models... many are higher-priced cars... to enjoy the full pleasure of owning the only really new car you can buy!

Despite extended work-days and the huge facilities of the Willow Run plant, the list of unfilled orders for spectacular new 1951 Kaisers lengthens every day.

All over America our dealers are short of cars. Therefore, we suggest you place your order now—so that you, too, will soon be proudly driving "America's most beautiful car!"

One glance and you know it's the newest car in America!

One mile behind the wheel and you'll want to own it!

Hudson Licks Browns, 5-1, But Nats Lose 2d, 10-8

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

THE PACIFIC COAST LEAGUE is making another pitch to rid itself of the label of a minor league, and it's a sort of a curve that is being served up. They aren't asking for outright recognition as a third major league; what they want is exemption from the draft, which would almost amount to the same thing.

Once rid of the stigma of the draft that entitles big league clubs to claim their ball players at the fixed $10,000 price, the PCL then would beat its breast and shout that it is apart from the minor leagues and no longer subservient to the majors. They could make out a pretty could case for themselves as a new major league.

POVICH

You'd have to say the success of the whole plan is pretty improbable. Despite all the pious consideration the majors are apparently giving the pleas of the Coast Leaguers, they aren't going to let go that easily. Major league control, once breached in that manner, would be jeopardized all down the line.

They know that the other Triple A leagues, the American Association and the International, wouldn't hold still for any such break-away from the draft by the PCL while they were still held subject to it.

IF THEY DON'T play the best baseball among the high minors in the Pacific Coast League, there isn't any way to deny that in other respects they more nearly qualify as a major league than any other of the minors. They can point to their big population centers like Los Angeles, San Francisco, Oakland, Seattle and Portland which rival many major league towns.

And they can claim, rightly, that certain of the PCL players draw higher salaries than many a player in the majors, with the PCL clubs perfectly able to pay because of their attendance figures. In many cases, veteran players of the majors have gone into the Coast League at better salaries than they had been making.

The rub is, though, that not all of the PCL cities could pay big league salaries. San Diego and, Sacramento, with limited populations to draw from, couldn't, and if placed on a major league basis couldn't compete with the richer clubs. It would be an unbalanced circuit.

AT THE INSISTENCE of President Clarence Rowland of the PCL, the major leagues now have a committee investigating the case of the Coast Leaguers. Commissioner A. B. Chandler agreed to set up the committee after the PCL modified its demand for outright major league status and declared its willingness to settle for exemption from the draft.

The committee isn't cracking a smile at this point, but the evidence is that it's conning the Coast Leaguers, for all its politeness. The majors won't willingly give up a source of talent like the Coast League simply because it's being asked. If they don't find a dozen excuses why it isn't feasible to grant the PCL request, then they are completely lacking in imagination.

The two big leagues have a snug monopoly on the World Series, for example, and they want no other league muscling in on that business. As long as the PCL is tabbed as a minor league, the majors are protected from that sort of challenge. There's no knowing to what lengths the PCL might go if it is recognized as something apart from the minor leagues.

UP UNTIL last week, the PCL was handling the whole idea pretty smartly under Rowland's direction, but lately they seemed to have stumbled badly. It is brought out now that they've engaged to represent them in the negotiations none other than Leslie O'Connor, former right bower of the late Judge Landis, and later the general manager of the White Sox.

If the PCL wants the aid and comfort of Commissioner Chandler in its project—and without it they will get nothing—they could not have made a worse choice than O'Connor. It was he who tried to upset Chandler's rule while with the White Sox, and was finally voted down by his own league. O'Connor was non grata with Chandler even before that, and his standing has deteriorated since.

The naming of O'Connor to take its case to Chandler and the majors, is the equivalent of asking Senator McCarthy to intercede with the Secretary of State in the hope of a favorable decision. You wouldn't like the chances. And thus you can't like the chances of the PCL in this affair, no matter what merit its case might have.

Kell, Evers Homer to Give Tigers Split With A's

Philadelphia, July 16 (AP).—Home runs by George Kell and Hoot Evers, each with a man on base, featured a six-run fourth inning rally as Detroit gained a 7-6 second game victory over the Philadelphia Athletics.

Philadelphia put on a three-run eighth-inning uprising to win the first game, 5-2.

Alex Kellner picked up his first American League pitching triumph over the Tigers in the opener. Ferris Fain's single with the bases loaded drive in two of the winners' runs during their late uprising.

A homer by Gerry Priddy off Relief Hurler Carl Scheib in the ninth inning with two out provided Detroit with its nightcap win.

Snead, Ferrier Win 4-Ball

Toledo, Ohio, July 16 (AP).—Slamming Sam Snead of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., and Jim Ferrier of San Francisco today grabbed the thirteenth Inverness invitational four-ball championship and pocketed the first prize of $4000.

On top of that they split an extra $250 for shooting the most birdies in the 126-hole seven-match grind (they had 48 birds and an eagle), and Sam got another $200 for winning the driving contest.

The two former PGA champions didn't give the rest of the field a chance today as they swept over Lloyd Mangrum and Cary Middlecoff, both former National Open champions, four up in the morn-

OOPS, SORRY—Roy Hartsfield, Boston Braves infielder, collides at home plate with Pittsburgh Pirate catcher Earl Turner in the third inning of the second game yesterday. Action began when Willard Marshal beat out a hit to Danny Murtaugh and, when Hartsfield tried to come home from second base, Murtaugh threw the ball to Turner who dropped the ball as Umpire Jocko Conlan called him safe. Pirates won this one with four home runs, 6-5, after losing, 9-5. Story on Page 13

Rookie Cain Beats Yanks Third Time

New York, July 16 (AP).—Lefty Bob Cain defeated the New York Yankees for the third time this season as he pitched the Chicago White Sox to a 5-2 victory over the Bombers in the second game of a double-header today.

The Yanks won the opener, 2-1.

37 Homers Hit In Majors Yesterday

New York, July 16 (U.P.)—Booming major-league bats set a new one day record for home run production today—37.

The bombardment erased a record of 31 which had stood only three weeks since Sunday, June 25. Today's action made the weekend homer total 62, after 13 on Friday and 12 on Saturday.

The National League banged out a record 25 homers and teamed up with the American League to create a new mark for most hits in both leagues in one day, 337.

Gene Woodling smashed a two-run double with two out in the second inning to spark the Yankees' victory in the opener.

Vic Raschi went the distance for the Yanks to gain his eleventh victory of the season.

Joe DiMaggio, who returned to the lineup after a week's absence, got a hit in the opener and drew two walks. He rested his torn groin muscle in the second game.

Chico Carrasquel, Venezuelan shortstop, received over $10,000

Martinez Routed in 1st Inning Of Nightcap

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Sid Hudson pitched the Nats to a smart 5-1 victory in the first game yesterday and then they spent the rest of the afternoon getting licked by the Browns, 10-8, in a messy second game performance.

The 6547 customers saw Hudson shut the Browns out with two hits for seven innings, before contenting himself with winning his ninth game by any figure. But in the second game, they wanted a different kind of Washington pitching—by Rookie Rogelio Martinez, Jim Pearce, Al Sima and Mickey Harris.

At that, the Nats were threatening to wipe out all of a 10-4 deficit in a big eighth inning. They scored four runs, but left the tying runs on base when Al Widmar struck out pinchhitter Roberto Ortiz, and got rid of Eddie Yost on a ground ball.

Martinez Out In First

Young Martinez, making his first start in the majors, didn't last out the first inning. Catcher Mickey Grasso didn't last out the second. Umpire Jim Honochick thumbed him out for squawking too loudly. And Manager Zach Taylor of the Browns didn't last out the second game, either. He got the thumb from Umpire Hank Soar in the seventh.

Manager Bucky Harris lost patience with Rookie Martinez not only because of his pitching. Twice in the first inning he neglected to cover first base on plays that would have helped him out of trouble, and the Browns wound up with a 4-0 lead.

They filled the bases with nobody out in that first inning when Lenhardt singled off his first pitch, and Coleman and Lollar drew walks. He got Kokos on a strikeout, and then forgot to cover first on Delsing's bounder to Vernon which went as a hit. A moment later, Martinez left first base uncovered on what would have been a first-to-second-to-first double play.

Two More Runs

Before the inning was over, Friend and Upton also clipped him for singles to drive in the third and fourth runs of the inning.

From that point the game devolved into a 28-hit slugfest with both clubs making 14. Against Elmer Singleton and Al Sima the Browns ran their lead to 7-3 by the end of the fifth.

Paradoxically, they got their two big runs off Mickey Harris, the Nats' relief ace. A walk, a sacrifice and Lollar's single fetched one run, and a wild throw by Noren and a fumble by Dente gave 'em another.

The Browns' starter, Harry Dorish, lasted until the seventh. The Nats got one run in that inning when Umpire Soar ruled shortstop Friend took his foot off second base in an attempt to throw for a double play. That was when Taylor blew his roof and was ejected. Dente finally drove the run in with a single to left.

Combs Fails in Clutch

When Dorish filled the bases with a pass to Evans, though, Dick Starr moved in. Whereupon pinch hitter Merril Combs left three on with a popup to Lenhardt.

The Nats' started attack the Browns' 10-4 lead in the eighth when with none out Mele was safe on Friend's fumble. Noren walked, Vernon fouled out, and Stewart singled one run home. It was the first of four consecutive Washington hits. Michaels singled and when Dente also singled, Widmar relieved Starr, with the Browns lead cut to 10-6.

Evans greeted Widmar with a single to center that scored two more and put the tying run on first with one out. But he rally collapsed when Widmar fanned Ortiz and disposed of Yost on a grounder to Friend. Sam Mele opened the ninth with a walk, but the Nats couldn't get him past first base, and he was the fifteenth runner left on.

Mickey Vernon and Sam Mele staked Hudson to a quick 1-0 lead in the second inning of his duel

Phils Lose 2, Cards Take Lead

Cubs Plaster Philadelphia, 8 to 0, 10 to 3

Chicago, July 16 (AP).—The Chicago Cubs knocked the Philadelphia Phillies out of first place in the National League today by winning both ends of a double-header, 8-0 and 10-3.

The double loss by the Phils enabled the St. Louis Cardinals, who lost a single game to the Brooklyn Dodgers, to back into the league lead.

The Cubs blasted Russ Meyer from the mound during a six-run seventh inning in the opener. The Cubs' 10-hit attack featured home runs by Roy Smalley and Andy Pafko.

Bob Miller lost his first game after eight victories in the nightcap.

During the day's bombardment before 35,710 fans, the Cubs made 26 hits. These included four homers, three triples, and seven doubles.

Leaders in the assault were Smalley and Pafko. Smalley got two homers, a triple, a double and a single and drove in six runs. Pafko helped himself to one homer, one triple, two doubles and two singles.

The first-base injury jinx struck the Cubs again today, benching veteran Phil Cavarretta for a month and leaving the Bruins without a regular first-sacker.

Cavarretta was hit on the right arm by a pitched ball in the first game.

A hospital examination disclosed a partial fracture.

Preston Ward suffered serious leg injuries on May 21 and has been out of action since then. His return is expected any day, but in the meantime, Outfielder Hank Sauer will play first. Sauer replaced Cavaretta today and in the second game handled 10 putouts without an error.

Clark Whips Shea for Title; Magda Rurac Wins Three

By Gordon Beard

Straight Clark, Pasadena, Calif., and Magda Rurac, Los Angeles, won the men's and women's singles titles of the Middle Atlantic tennis championships at the Kenwood Golf and Country Club yesterday.

Clark, seeded sixth, downed eighth-seeded Gil Shea, Los Angeles, 8—6, 6—4, 6—4. Mme. Rurac, 10-time national champion of Romania, successfully defended her Mid-Atlantic crown by winning over second-seeded Baba Lewis of Boston, Mass., 6—3, 1—6, 6—3. Mrs. Rurac was also a member of winning women's and mixed doubles teams.

Shea and Clark played identical serve-and-rush-the-net games, but Clark had the better ground strokes and outclassed Shea on volleys close to the net.

Clark overcame a 5-6 deficit to win the first set, took the last four games to win the second, and then swept through five straight to take a commanding 5-1 lead in the final set.

Mme. Rurac had ot overcome a tough forcing game by Miss Lewis and her own faulty backhand stroke to win the women's finals.

After winning the first set, the defending champ suddenly lost control of her backspinning backhand and began pounding it into the net. Miss Lewis, meanwhile, had her powerful forehand working beautifully.

Madame Rurac, losing 1-2 in the final set, settled down to take the next four games and assume a safe lead, although she had to break Miss Lewis' serve to win the match.

The singles opponents later teamed in the doubles to win easily over Virginia Boyer, Fairfax, Va., and Ann Gray, Washington, 6—0, 6—1.

Then as darkness closed in, Mme. Rurac won her third title of the day. Teaming with Alphonso

Redskins Trade Crisler to 49ers On 'If' Basis

Special to The Washington Post

Los Angeles, July 16.—Coach Herman Ball, of the Washington Redskins, announced the completion of two trades with the San Francisco 49ers tonight shortly after the Redskins arrived here from Washington to begin training.

The former All-American Conference club got the rights to Hal Criser, veteran end, and Jim Cullom, draftee tackle from University of California, for two of the 49ers draft choices next season. For Crisler, the Redskins got the 49'ers No. 6 choice and for Cullom the seventeenth, that being the position in which Cullom was chosen by the 'Skins last winter.

Both Crisler and Cullom had declared their intentions of staying out of football this year if they could not play with a team near their West Coast homes. The deals are "if" deals—if either Crisler and Cullom don't stay with the 49ers after August 28 either deal is off.

Dropo Clouts 3 Homers

Bosox Outslug Indians, 13-10, But Masterson Loses 2d, 8-4

Boston, July 16 (AP).—Walt Dropo lashed three homers for the Boston Red Sox, boosting his season's total to 22, today as Boston split a doubleheader with the Cleveland Indians.

Boston won a first game slugfest, 13-10, and then bowed by an 8-4 margin in the nightcap, during which Steve Gromek handcuffed them for seven innings before being replaced by Bob Lemon.

Pirates Clout 4 Homers In Nightcap to Split With Braves

Wyrostek Hurt

Reds Take 2 From Giants, 16-4 and 11-10

Cincinnati, July 16 (AP).—Hank Thompson's twelfth inning error on Bobby Usher's ground ball let in the winning run to give the Cincinnati Reds an 11 to 10 victory over the New York Giants and a clean sweep of today's doubleheader. The Reds won the first game, 16 to 4.

Usher's blow first was called a hit and the scorer then changed it to an error for Thompson.

Johnny Wyrostek, hard hitting Cincinnati outfielder, injured his left ankle in the opener while sliding into the plate in the third inning and was taken to Chris Hospital for an examination.

Attendants said the full extent of Wyrostek's injury could not be determined until after X-rays are taken.

Twelve home runs were powered over the fences in the 6 hours and 45 minutes of baseball. Ted Kluszewski and Joe Adcock of the Reds and Wes Westrum of the Giants each got two circuit blows.

The victory moved the surging Reds to within two games of sixth place New York. Cincinnati now has won 18 of its last 25 games.

Hudson Gets Ninth Win

Sid Takes Opener, 5-1, Gives Browns Only Seven Hits

with Overmire. Vernon led off with a double to center and Mele promptly got him home with a single to left.

Eddie Yost's first hit in 18 times at bat, a smartly placed bunt down the third base line, inspired another Washington run in the second. He raced to third on Michaels' hit-and-run blooper-single to right, and Noren scored him with a long fly to Kokos.

Overmire's slow stuff was discombooberating 'em after that, and he pitched four scoreless innings, but the Browns were having a heap of trouble with Hudson, who pitched two-hit ball going into the eighth in protection of his 2-0 lead. In six of the first seven innings, he faced only three batters.

In the third, Hudson got out of trouble after singles by Stirnweiss and Overmire put men on first and third with one out. He did it by fanning Upton and throwing out Coleman.

In the eighth, though, Big Sid had to bear down to hold the Browns' to a lone un. Moss led off with a single off Hudson's leg, and Stirnweiss singled to right. Before anybody was out, pinchhitter Jim Delsing bounced a single over Vernon's head to score one run and move Stirnweiss to second.

Then the Browns went strategic. After Hudson got a 2-2 count on Overmire, he was replaced by pinchhitter Lollar. Hudson got Lollar on a pop-up, and he held pinchhitter Wood to a harmless fly to Ostrowski. But he walked Coleman to fill the bases, and had to buckle down to dispose of Lenhardt on a pop to Yost.

New Cuban Martinez Routed in First Inning of Second

Then the Nats wrapped up the ball game for him in their own eighth against Clarence Marshall, the former Yankee. Yost singled off Marshall's midriff, Noren walked, and with two out Marshall forced a run home with walks to Mele and Pinchhitter Eddie Stewart. Dente delivered the second and third runs of the inning with a single to center.

Clark Whips Shea for Title

Smith, Washington, in the mixed doubles, the combine defeated Gil Bogley, Chevy Chase, and Miss Lewis, 3—6, 6—2, 6—2.

Earl Cochell, San Francisco, and Hugh Stewart, Los Angeles, took the men's doubles crown, beating Jim Brink and Fred Fisher, Seattle, Wash., 6—1, 7—5.

Brink wanted to stop playing after the first set as rain clouds, frequent visitors all week, darkened the court. An argument followed, and just when the situation seemed stalemated, the clouds broke and play continued.

Wet Grounds Cancel Show At Arlington

The Animal Welfare League of Arlington Horse Show scheduled for yesterday was postponed after the officials decided that the ankle-deep mud and wet grounds of the Fairfax (Va.) show ring was too treacherous and unfit for hunter and jumper exhibitions.

Kemp B. Furr, chairman, and Gordon R. Furr, secretary, decided at 7:30 a. m. to postpone the show.

A new date has not yet been established officially for the show, but it may be held on Saturday, July 22, if clearance is given by the Virginia Horse Shows Association.

Mrs. Glick Beats Mrs. Bower for Maryland Title

Area Golf Roundup

Gallagher, Brownell Win Member-Guest

By Dave Heller
Post Reporter

Walt Gallagher and Bobby Brownell of Chevy Chase, the heavy favorites in the finals of Columbia Country Club's member-guest tournament, came through to win the title yesterday, but they had to do it the hard way.

They downed the tournament dark horses, Don West and Maj. B. K. Yount of Army Navy, who had previously knocked off many local big-name linksmen in the meet, by a bare one-up margin.

The match was even going into the last hole, when Brownell knocked in a 12-foot putt to par the 430-yard hole. Yount rimmed the cup with a 10-footer that would have halved the hole, but the cantankerous ball refused to stay in. Results in other flights:

Manor Club Star Loses By 5 and 4

Baltimore, July 16 (AP). — Mrs. Maurice Glick won the Maryland Women's Golf Championship today with a 5 and 4 victory over Mrs. A. B. Bower of Washington.

Mrs. Glick, from Baltimore's Woodholme Country Club, had a two-hole advantage over the District of Columbia titleholder when an electrical storm halted their championship match on the ninth green yesterday.

Starting from the same lies today, the two finalists halved the ninth in par fours. They also halved the tenth, when Mrs. Glick's 40-foot putt for a birdie four hopped across the cup.

The Baltimore woman went three ahead on the eleventh after her rival from Washington's Manor Club executed a superb recovery shot from the wet sand and then flubbed a 4-foot putt that would have given her a par four and a half on the hole.

Mrs. Glick won the twelfth with a birdie four, on strength of a bold putt 20 feet down hill.

So the match seemed all but settled when they teed up on the thirteenth and Mrs. Glick was four up. If there was any doubt, luck stepped in to wipe it out.

Mrs. Bower picked a No. 2 iron for her second shot on this 367-yarder. The ball rolled into the stream which frames the green. Mrs. Glick chose a No. 4 iron for her second shot. Her ball splashed into the stream but then startled the gallery by rolling up onto the fringe grass. Mrs. Glick won the hole with a par four and the match ended on the fourteenth when they halved it.

Mr. Boh is a REEL sport!

1 With rod and reel, our Mr. Boh
Went out to catch a fish.
"Oh boy," said he, "this sporting life
Is certainly my dish!"

2 He found a brook. He waded in.
And then with eye a-gleam,
He got all set—and cast his line
Far out across the stream!

3 Alas! Alack! The line lashed back
And tied him in a tangle.
"The time has come," said Mr. Boh,
To try another angle."

2 North Va. Men Killed In Weekend Traffic

Merrifield Victim Hit on Lee Hwy.; Loudoun Resident Dies in Auto Crash

Two northern Virginia men were killed in auto accidents over the weekend.

Mason Lee, 63, was killed by an auto yesterday while trying to cross Lee Highway two miles west of Falls Church near his home in Merrifield, Va.

Fairfax police identified the driver of the auto as William W. Alexander, 58, of Oxford, Pa. Lee was pronounced dead on the scene. There were no charges.

In the other fatal accident, 23-year-old Joseph Blakely Bevers of Round Hill, Loudoun County, was killed when the pickup truck he was driving ran off the road on Route 657, about 3½ miles west of Berryville, Va.

Woman Is Uninjured

Police said Bevers fell from the truck as it swerved off into a field. An unidentified woman companion riding with Bevers was not injured. The accident occurred about 10 p. m. Saturday.

A tire blowout and a quick stop on Oxon Hill rd., Oxon Hill, Md., early yesterday, resulted in a fractured skull and scalp lacerations for Julia Johnston, 34, of 7100 Oxon Hill rd.

Miss Johnston, a passenger in an auto driven by an unidentified man, told police she struck her head against the windshield when the car stopped.

She returned home, apparently feeling well, but became ill several hours later and was taken to Providence Hospital in a critical condition.

Shortly before midnight Saturday a three-car collision resulted at Nichols ave. and Sumner rd. se., when an auto driven by Corpl. Albert R. Warner, 20, of Bolling Air Base, suddenly swerved to the wrong side of the street.

Hearing Scheduled July 21

Warner's auto, police said, first sideswiped a taxi driven by William C. Simmons, 48, of 2016 13th st. nw., and then struck an auto driven by Mrs. Grace M. Miller, 37, of 1348 W st. se.

Mrs. Miller was admitted to Casualty Hospital with head injuries. Doctors said she was in fair condition. A hearing will be held in the Corporation Counsel's office July 21.

Conway Shenk, 17, of Luray, Va., was critically injured early yesterday when the auto he was riding in swerved off the road on a curve on Route 211, about 1½ miles east of Luray. Taken to Page Memorial Hospital, Shenk was still unconscious late yesterday.

The driver of the auto was identified as Shenk's cousin, Rudolph Zamzow, 24. Zamzow was treated for minor injuries and released. The auto was demolished.

Nurserymen, Meeting Here, Point to Practical Gardens

By Tom Kelley—The Washington Post

By V. R. Montanari
Post Reporter

In 1875, when the American Association of Nurserymen was formed, the typical American garden was a formal thing of symmetrical plant and flower arrangements, clipped hedges and even classical statuary.

Now, as the association gathers here for its diamond jubilee convention, the American garden is "an outdoor living room designed for practical use," as Dr. Richard P. White, the association's executive secretary, expressed it yesterday.

In other words, it's a place "where you can get out and have a highball" without feeling choked by the stiffness of your surroundings, said Dr. White.

No Longer Copying

The changes in landscaping, shrubbery and trees have come about because we no longer are copying European-style design and arrangements, but have developed something distinctly American, growing out of the practical American way of life, according to Dr. White, a doctor of horticulture and a former Rutgers University professor in that field. He lives at 5367 28th st. nw.

American developments in housing have also influenced the choice of shrubbery and trees, Dr. White pointed out. Because the one-level house, including the ranch style, has become popular, the trend is toward dwarf bushes which won't grow so high that they cover the windows, but will spread out rather than up, he explained.

World War II brought another trend, the greater use of fruit trees in the home garden for both decorative and useful purposes, the horicultural expert said. This saved a tremendous amount of transportation and has helped the American diet, he said. He cited peaches, plums, some types of apples, grapes and bush fruits as the most popular and the easiest to grow.

Practical Considerations

Along the same practical lines, the association is advocating "climate control by planting." The nurserymen claim, for instance, that a curved high hedge of evergreens which cuts northerly winds down from 12 to 3 miles an hour at 32 degrees Fahrenheit will cut heating fuel requirements by one half.

By the same token, they say, summer breezes from the west are forced through the narrow space between your house and the same hedge, increasing air movement and coolness. The location of the hedge can be fitted to prevailing wind conditions.

Another "climate control" measure advocated by the nurserymen is the "plant awning," a plant or vine trained over a trellis or wire netting above a window. The full leaves of the summer shade the window, while in winter the shedding of the leaves lets the full sun shine through.

About 1200 nursery people are attending the convention being held at the Statler Hotel through Thursday. Senator Harry F. Byrd (D., Va.), will address the group at a Tuesday luncheon, while Secretary of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan will speak at a tree ceremony Thursday at the Arboretum. The annual banquet is Thursday evening.

6 Injured Fighting Fire At Rosslyn

An Arlington County fireman had to borrow a nickel to call his fire company to the scene of a blaze in an abandoned laundry at 1407 Lee Highway, Rosslyn, Va., yesterday.

Louis Luzi, 3900 Lee Highway, Arlington, chief of Volunteer Fire Company No. 3, was towing a car into his gas station when he saw flames inside the unoccupied one-story frame building. He ran to the nearest phone, dug into his pockets and came up empty handed. A passerby gave him the coin.

Edgar Farmer, 910 N. Stafford st., Arlington, a volunteer at Arlington Company No. 2, suffered cuts on the left hand and was treated and released at Arlington County Hospital. Five other firemen were injured slightly and treated on the scene for smoke inhalation and other minor injuries.

The building formerly housed the Industrial Laundry, which moved down the street after the plant was burned out several months ago.

Mother Watches Son, 12, Drown As Rescue Fails

A 12-year-old Baltimore boy drowned off Riviera Beach, on the Patapsco River, Anne Arundel County, Md., yesterday when his innertube deflated in 5 feet of water.

The victim, James Patterson, sank in spite of rescue attempts by his stepfather, Leo Novak, who was in the water about 100 feet away. The boy's mother, who watched from the shore, was treated for shock by members of the Riviera Beach Fire Department Rescue Squad who also recovered the body.

Man Plunges To His Death Off Bridge

Capitol Policeman Warns Him, Phones For Aid to Avert Early-Morning Leap

An unidentified man plunged to his death from the Taft Bridge about 5 a. m. yesterday after telling an off-duty member of the U. S. Capitol Police force: "It's none of your business. I'm going to jump."

The policeman, Pvt. Morgan J. Gaudeau, 21, of 1704 19th st. nw., said he was walking on the bridge, located in the 2300 block of Connecticut ave., on his way home from a date when he saw the man hanging on a narrow ledge outside the bridge rail.

Gaudeau said he told the man: "Be careful, old man, or you're going to fall off."

The man replied: "Get the hell away from here. It's none of your business. I'm going to jump."

Gaudeau ran to a nearby hotel and summoned Park Police. By the time the cruiser arrived, the man had jumped, police said. His body was found on a roadway in Rock Creek Park.

Police said the man was white, between 40 and 50 years old; 5 feet 8 inches tall and weighed 150 pounds, with brown hair. He was wearing gray trousers, sweater and hat, a maroon sports shirt, and black shoes. His body was taken to the District Morgue. Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald said he would withhold a certificate until after the man is identified.

Missing Wife Of Airman Found Here

The 29-year-old wife of a Bolling Air Base sergeant, missing since Wednesday, was located yesterday at the Women's Emergency Home of the Salvation Army, 1608 New Hampshire ave. nw., registered under her own name.

Officials of the home informed police that Mrs. Alice G. Malonson was there after reading stories of her disappearance in yesterday's papers.

Her husband, Tech. Sergt. Wilfred Malonson had reported her as apparently in good spirits at lunch Wednesday.

He suggested taking his visiting mother, sister, and brother on a tour around Bolling Air Force Base. After they had driven three blocks on Wheeler rd., he said, his wife complained of feeling ill, and insisted on walking alone back to the house at 1050 Barnaby ter. se.

Salvation Army officials said she checked in at the home later that afternoon.

4 Men Beat Policeman, Take His Gun

An off-duty policeman was beaten and his service revolver stolen outside his apartment house early yesterday by four men after he tried to quiet them.

Pvt. Andrew Macklin, 26, of 1831 D st. ne., attached to the Second Precinct, was treated at Gallinger Hospital for a severe cut over the right eye and bruises of the head and face.

Police arrested Theodore Wade, jr., 23, of 2214 Flagler pl. nw., on charges of assault on a police officer, and larceny of District property.

Macklin said four men and two women were parked in a car outside his apartment house and were being noisy.

He went out, carrying his revolver in a holster, and identified himself as a policeman by showing his badge, he said.

One of the men, he continued, hit him from behind. Another grabbed the gun and pummeled him with it, Macklin reported.

Light Plane Crash-Lands at Bailey's Cross Rds; Virginia Boy, 8, and 2 Others Escape Injury

Piper Cub 'Conks Out' 150 Feet Up Shortly After Taking Off

An 8-year-old boy and two other occupants of a Piper Cub plane escaped unhurt yesterday in a dead-stick crash landing off the south end of the Washington-Virginia Airport at Bailey's Crossroads.

Pilot Alvin P. Hines, jr., 48, of 3517 S. 16th st., Arlington, said his engine conked out on the takeoff, about 150 feet in the air.

He turned to his 8-year-old nephew, Bill Maconaughey of Woodbridge, Va., and said: "Hang on; we're going to crash-land."

Said young Billy later: "I thought he was just kidding."

Seconds later, Hines brought the light plane in, tail down, in some thick undergrowth off Seminary rd. The landing gear was wrecked, the fuselage bent, and the wings damaged.

But "we walked out without a scratch," Hines reported. He said the third passenger was his cousin, Miss Mary Ann King, 19, of Rescue, Va.

Hines, a veteran amateur pilot with 1500 hours of flying time, said he thinks his fuel line may have suddenly clogged, causing the engine failure.

Billy, when asked whether or not he was frightened by the episode, replied firmly, "No."

But he said he wouldn't go flying again—"not for a mighty long time."

The co-owner of the wrecked plane, W. M. Reese of 3031 S. Columbus st., Fairlington, said he was headed for the airport to solo in the light plane when he saw it heading for the crash landing.

"As soon as I knew he (Hines) was flying it, I knew he'd come out okay," Reese said.

The Washington Post

LUCKY—Pilot Alvin P. Hines, jr., describes how he crash-landed his plane yesterday at the Washington-Virginia Airport. With him is his nephew, Bill Maconaughey, 8, one of two passengers who were in the plane. No one was hurt in the accident.

By Pneumonia

Fat Man Of Circus Is Stricken

Washington had and lost an outsize case of pneumonia yesterday.

Carter Lindsey, 674 pounds of circus fatman, was shipped home to South Norfolk, Va., in a Capital Airliner after a wild 13-minute ride to the airport. He walked to a Chambers ambulance at the circus grounds at Benning rd. and Oklahoma ave. ne.

The 26-year-old Goliath was taken sick Friday, according to side-show manager Dick Best of the Cole Brothers Circus. Best said Lindsey seemed to have the flu, but grew steadily worse.

Carter went home as fast as he could, to climb into his special large-size reinforced bed. His private doctor will take care of him in South Norfolk.

Capital Airlines made two reservations for Carter and removed the arm rest from between two seats so he could fit. He was accompanied on the 50-minute flight by his 225-pound, 6-foot-tall sister, Mrs. Thomas Treadaway.

The sister, as well as Carter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Lindsey, had driven here from South Norfolk to see him perform.

Mr. and Mrs. Lindsey were not particularly enthusiastic when Carter joined the circus in April. However, they said he was big enough to make up his own mind.

Hotel Occupant Scrawls Note With Soap, Then Kills Himself

After scribbling a message in soap on a bathroom mirror, 28-year-old Charles Whittmore shot himself fatally through the head yesterday morning in the Clore House, 614 S st. nw., police said.

Whittmore was found by a hotel employe about 5:40 a. m. He was pronounced dead at Freedman's Hospital at 8:20 a. m.

Deputy District Coroner Christopher J. Murphy issued a certificate of death by suicide.

Police said the note read:

"For you my love. Tell my wife I'm sorry. Forgive me. Contact Bessie at 536 3d st. ne., or 24½ Hanover."

Whittmore and his wife, Esther, of 1003 6th st. sw., have been separated since April, police said. They were unable, however, to locate "Bessie."

The hotel employe, Viola Ball, said she heard a thud in Whittmore's room and investigated. She said he was sprawled, naked, against the tub in the bathroom. A gun, identified by police as a foreign-made .32 automatic, was near the body.

Detectives said Whittmore registered at the hotel about 9:30 p. m. Saturday, giving his address as Toledo, Ohio.

Nine Arrested As Police Raid Poker Party

Members of the vice squad raided the first floor of a home at 2424 14th st. nw. yesterday at 2:30 a. m. and the occupant was later charged with setting up a gaming table and permitting gaming.

Police said it was the third call they had made at that address in the past three weeks, all on the basis of complaints that a poker game was in progress.

Detectives said they knocked, and the door was opened by one of the players. The police were able to see past the man and into the room, where eight other men were seated around a table playing poker, according to their report.

The occupant, William Thomas Cooper, 46, a salesman, was charged. He was released under $2000 bond for appearance Monday in Municipal Court.

The other eight, charged with disorderly conduct, elected to forfeit $5 collateral each.

With Heart Ills

Vacation Set For Ailing Youngsters

Some 120 children of 8 to 14 years who have heart disease will be given two weeks of fresh air and sun this summer at two camps sponsored by the Washington Heart Association. The camps open August 18.

A specialized program of activities and medical supervision is provided at Camp Wonderland, for white children, and Camp Sunshine, for Negro children, both located in Prince William National Park near Quantico, Va.

Last year, 96 children were sent to the camps for the first time and on an experimental basis. Main reason for the camps is that many children with heart trouble are turned down by regular summer camps.

Although most of the children will be enrolled by the Children's Hospital cardiac clinic and the rheumatic fever unit at Gallinger Hospital, any 8-to-14-year-old child with heart disease living in the area is eligible for consideration according to Heart Association President Bernard J. Walsh.

Physicians or parents may apply through the social service department of the cardiac clinic at Children's Hospital.

Barge Occupant Drowns 20 Feet From His Boat

George Otis Bennett, 47, was found drowned yesterday about 20 feet from his barge home on the Potomac, off Mount Vernon blvd., a quarter-mile south of Alexandria, police said.

Police said they believe Bennett had been dead about 10 hours when he was found about 8 a. m. They said Dr. Emmanuel Newman, Fairfax County coroner, pronounced death due to drowning, with bayrum poisoning a contributing factor.

Bennett was still clutching several blankets and a coat when discovered half way between shore and the craft by a bargemate, Thomas Sillex, 40. Police believe Bennett may have been heading towards shore to sleep when he fell into the river.

Rail Engineer Accused of Slaying His Former Wife

Police Say Silver Hill Man Admits Firing Single Bullet Which Killed Divorced Mate

Prince Georges County police yesterday were holding 44-year-old John L. Waesche, a railroad engineer, on a murder charge in the fatal shooting of his divorced wife.

A single bullet fired from a car late Saturday night, police said, fatally wounded Mrs. Ida Waesche Dugan, 40, and grazed her 12-year-old son, Earl Waesche, in their home at 808 49th ave., Capitol Heights, Md.

Mrs. Dugan died early yesterday in Casualty Hospital. The boy was treated at Casualty and released.

Waesche was arrested about 3 a. m. yesterday as he dozed in his car, parked along Marlboro pike, just outside District Heights, Md.

Waesche, who lives at 5401 Silver Hill rd., Silver Hill, Md., admitted he drove up to his divorced wife's home and fired a shot from a .32 caliber automatic, Detective Wilson J. Purdy said.

Weapon Found

The weapon, with one bullet fired, according to Purdy, was found in his pocket.

Neighbors said Mrs. Dugan, Earl and another son, John Waesche, 13, were home about 11 p. m. Saturday. A car drove up to the house and a man's voice called for Mrs. Dugan.

A shot was fired, piercing the glass front door. The neighbors said they heard a scream, presumably from one or both of the boys:

"Oh, he shot my mother!"

Deputy District Coroner Christopher J. Murphy said the bullet entered the right side of the woman's chest at an angle, passed through her right arm and severed a blood vessel. He said death was due to shock and hemorrhage.

Standing in Doorway

At the time of the shooting, Mrs. Dugan was standing in a doorway between the living room and the kitchen of the bungalow-type house. Her son, Earl, was standing seven feet behind her. The bullet barely grazed him.

Neighbors and friends said Mrs. Dugan and Waesche had been married 20 years, until she recently obtained a divorce. Besides the two sons, they have a daughter, Mrs. Barbara Jean Coleman.

Last July 6, Mrs. Dugan married William Dugan of Philadelphia. She returned a week ago to the Capitol Heights address, where she lives with her mother, Mrs. Lottie Homiller.

Dugan, police said, was in Philadelphia over the weekend.

Told of Threats

Attorney Albert R. Hassall, of 7207 Halleck st., District Heights, said Mrs. Dugan called him Saturday and told him Waesche had come to the house early Saturday with a gun and threatened to kill her.

Hassall said he advised Mrs. Dugan to notify police.

It was shortly after Mrs. Dugan was released from the Maryland State Sanitarium for tuberculosis treatment, about two years ago that Waesche left her, they said.

He is being held without bond on the murder charge at the Upper Marlboro Jail. He will be arraigned late this week—presumably Friday—at the Upper Marlboro Police Court, authorities said.

Cook Spends Half Hour In Stalled Elevator

James R. Robertson, 30, spent a half hour alone in a blacked-out elevator stuck between the first and second floors of his apartment house, 120 C st. ne. last night.

Robertson, a cook at Bassin's restaurant, 1347 E st. nw., was marooned when a fuse blew, police reported.

Easy-to-wear Casuals Gift of U. S. Designers

By Peggy Preston

NEW YORK, July 16.—If we must toast fashions according to "looks," let's give a great, big hand to the casual, well-bred clothes that add up to the "American look."

France may contribute its sumptuous, wicked little black dress; London may stand for the tweedy, solid suit. But it has been left for the U. S. A. to create a remarkable range of feminine clothing which we call the casuals. These are the easy-to-wear-and-slip-into suits, separates and convertibles that typify our busy, work-a-day life.

For this is America:

The ever-lasting and lively clothes of award-winning designer Claire McCardell, who creates for the young, lithe figure of American womanhood; the uncomplicated good tailoring of suits and coats by Davidow and the up-and-coming, rapid-change attitude of the separates designed by B. H. Wragge.

Scores of Casual Artists

THERE ARE scores of other equally fine "casual" artists in the field, but these three are typical of them all. Their collections, viewed here this past week, provide the outstanding fashion highlights that we will see repeated again and again this winter on the campus, in the office and in the thriving suburban areas of American cities.

Miss McCardell, Maryland-born darling of the young career woman, has dared defy the season's edict by continuing to turn out the wide, free-swinging skirt that her devotees crave. They will also cheer her fabrics which she has designed for her collection—thick, soft tweeds, fake furs, fleeces, textured knits, crinkled crepe and crunch-pleated woolens.

Any long-limbed American gal will want to own one of the McCardell de luxe raincoats. One, in particular, is of waterproof cotton poplin plaid, cut in greatcoat fashion. It is shown with matching knee-length boots by Capezio and an umbrella. Another, also cotton, and equally colorful, is quilted.

Smart Summer Coats Are Long

Here in America we've become such addicts of the comfortable short coat that for the past few years, summer coats have been getting shorter and shorter until this year they were little more than flaring fly-away boleros. But as fashion always goes from one extreme to another, the smart new summer coat fashion was the long "duster," as I've told you in this column before.

It's been a terrific popular success too—as you've probably realized yourself by the number of women—particularly smart young girls — wearing long duster coats of some sort—linen—butcher spun rayon—shantung—pique.

These are available at almost any price you want to pay too, so why not try one just for fun?

Only Woman Senator In Philippines Here

By Marie McNair

THE Philippine Islands' first and only woman Senator, Geronima Pecson, will go on the floor of the United States Senate Tuesday under the aegis of America's only woman Senator, Margaret Chase Smith.

The two have another bond. It's the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (better known as UNESCO) in which Senator Pecson can claim another "first." She's the first woman elected to serve on UNESCO's executive board. Senator Smith is a member of the U. S. national commission.

In the gentle way that the women of her country have, Senator Pecson has diligently studied ways and means of improving the welfare of the Filipinos snce the war. Following her election to the Philippine Senate three years ago as a member of the Liberal party, she has worked indefatigably for educational reforms. She's chairman of the Senate committee on education and headed a joint committee of the Philippine Congress which investigated educational practices in the islands.

She also heads the important Senate Committee on Health and Public Welfare.

Miss Pecson began her career as a school teacher. During the war she, like other Filipino women, did underground and relief work. Her first job when the war broke was to direct Red Cross operations in Zamboangna.

Just back from the UNESCO conference in Florence, Italy, Senator Pecson is on her way home. Tuesday, following the opening of the Senate, she will lunch as the guest of Senator Smith at the Senate with members of the feminine bloc of Congress among the guests.

On Thursday she will be luncheon guest of Dr. Luther Evans, Librarian of Congress, also a member of UNESCO's Executive Board, at the Library of Congress, and that afternoon at a party given by the American Newspaper Women's Club she will share honors with Hollywood's glamor girl, Myrna Loy, chairman of Hollywood's UNESCO Committee, also just back from the conference.

Before that she attended the Young Adult Methodist Assembly at Western Maryland College to discuss "Emergent Trends in Community Living." A great scholar and student of Chinese, Ellen Wood's poem, "Blind Peter," took a first prize in Switzerland.

John J. Greer has issued invitations to a supper party on Thursday, the first in a series of summer garden suppers which he will give at his home in Georgetown.

Summertime, and the Slimming Is Easy, Thanks to Miracle Diet

By Ida Jean Kain

SUMMERTIME . . . and the slimming is easy. The sharp edge is off the appetite, and the season's foods are obligingly low in fuel calories and made to order for dieting. It's the perfect time to lose 6 pounds in 12 days on cooling menus.

What do you want to accomplish with this diet? To cool off, slim down and look younger than your summers. Fair enough. Scientific slimming fills the bill. Science may sound hot and heavy on a sultry day . . . but stop mopping your brow, for these menus are planned to keep the diet rich in protection and low in concentrated fuel foods.

THE miracle of summer slimming is not only to help you lose pounds—any diet that is low enough in calories will pull off weight—but to keep you from bogging down with the heat. Nature has a nice way of renewing those who protect the body's basic nutrition needs while losing weight. And an equally certain way of retaliating when nutrition requirements are not met.

THIS not only holds true for dieters. Nutrition frequently goes into a summer slump. It's just too hot to cook . . . and too hot to eat, are frequent remarks. With less activity, fewer fuel foods are required, but the essential nutrition needs are the same. And when less food is eaten, the quality of the menu should be more carefully chosen.

BUT back to slimming. To reduce fat, not healthy tissues, a summer diet must be highly protective, including adequate protein. At one time it was believed that protein in the summer fare should be kept low as it was considered too "heating" because of its specific dynamic action. But tissue repair and upkeep are equally important at all seasons, and the trick is to include adequate protein without the concentrated fats. At any season, protein builds slimness by helping to burn up already-stored fat, and keeps the body cells in top-notch condition.

In hot weather salt should not be restricted in a reducing diet, for this mineral is lost through perspiration. So unless a low salt diet is prescribed by your doctor, use a normal amount of salt.

When baby yawns, that's a cue for mother

Your Baby and Mine

Mother Doesn't Always Know Best About Nap

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

WHY won't my baby sleep? That is the gist of a large number of letters which come to this department. It is the nature of all living things to sleep and one cannot wonder that a mother worries when her children cannot, or will not.

All children should have an opportunity to sleep. This would seem self-evident. But mothers often inflict upon a child some sleep habits unnatural to them—in the interest of convenience—and then when the child cannot sleep, the habit of non-sleep is established.

Mothers should know that when a child yawns and looks sleepy this would be a good time to give him the opportunity to sleep, instead of waiting for the regular naptime if the baby seems disinclined to sleep then. Babies have their own sleep rhythms which might differ from the nap and bedtimes set down by the parents.

Good Time to Nap

MOST babies can sleep after a meal, so this is a good time to put them down and expect sleep. If it doesn't come within a reasonable time, it is better to take the baby up and wait until there are clear signs of sleepiness. If a baby is kept awake when he wants to sleep and put down to sleep when he is out of the mood, it won't be long before he will be a notorious non-sleeper.

A mother should take heed of the bed in which the baby sleeps. It should be straight and firm. Beds used by other children develop sags which make restful sleep impossible. Don't be partial to a mattress or springs just because "all" the children have used it.

Can Sleep Anywhere

TIRED CHILDREN can sleep almost anywhere, but one the initial, fatigue is dispelled, any bodily discomfort or any loud sounds will wake them up and keep them awake.

Children should not be burdened with too much clothing. And this means less than most mothers would think comfortable. In this season a diaper is enough for the baby, and one thin garment for the older child.

Woodlawn Opens Doors For Visitors

Woodlawn's hospitable doors were open to the public Sunday afternoon from 1 to 5 p. m. The estate was George Washington's wedding gift to his adopted daughter, Nellie Custis, and his favorite nephew, Lawrence Lewis.

Miss Mayme C. Parker of Arcturus-on-the-Potomac has succeeded Miss Kathleen Douglass of Alexandria in scheduling the volunteer hostesses to conduct visitors through the mansion. Genuinely appreciated is the idea of serving refreshments at the end of the tour, a plan which was started last Sunday.

The house and 130 acres of the original estate have been purchased by the Woodlawn Public Foundation. Part of the purchase price is still unpaid, and an effort is being made to raise sufficient funds to restore, repair, and refurnish the mansion as well.

Mrs. O. E. Pollock and Mrs. H. L. Brubaker were chosen to receive the visitors on Sunday, and relate the story of Nellie Custis, Martha Washington's granddaughter who grew up at Mount Vernon. Presiding at the punch table were Mrs. Maurice Herndon, Mrs. Emilie Miller and Mrs. A. C. Benjes, jr.

Rough and Ready Burlap Foresakes Its Role as the Farm's Wheat Sack To Become Modern Wall Covering

THE same rough fabric used to sack grain on the farm makes smart walls in modern homes. It's burlap we're talking about, and burlap that a reader asks about it in the following letter:

DEAR ANNE:

We would like to cover some of the walls in our new home with burlap. Is there a special kind made for this purpose? Where do you buy it?

Is it applied as wallpaper is or is a special technique required? Do you cut off selvages? Is it treated after application? Can it be painted to cover undesirable colors?

Can we do the job ourselves or would professional assistance be required? How do you finish off rough edges at top and bottom? What is the life expectancy of walls so treated? Jane P. Willey, Arlington, Va.

Burlap with a special backing, designed as a wall covering, is sold in—or can be ordered through— local wallpaper stores. It comes in several colors and is applied in the same manner as wallpaper. A special wheat paste is used, walls first being sized. With this burlap, you avoid the problem of selvages and it's easier to apply than plain burlap.

The latter, however, can be used and is considerably cheaper. It is sold in upholstery and drapery departments or shops. Selvages should be trimmed off, as they will make it shrink and warp. Walls should be sized before it is put on. Linoleum paste or glues are sometimes recommended for applying it, but ordinary wallpaper paste can be used. Trick is to apply it thinly so that it won't show through the burlap. Where strips of burlap meet (it comes in 36-inch widths), lap them about ¼ inch. No further treatment is necessary after burlap is pasted on the wall.

Neatest finish for bottom and top would be to have wooden molding or baseboard fastened over the burlap edge. Or you might get the sticky tape sold for use on Venetian blinds and use it to pipe the rough edges.

If you do a good job of applying the burlap, it will prove a most enduring wall covering. Carelessly applied, however, it may peel at the edges. If you are skilled with your hands, you should be able to do the work yourself. It can be painted over to change the color or freshen it. Use thinned paint, so as not to destroy the textured effect.

DEAR ANNE:

What is the proper way to word cards reminding one of a birthday? I want to be friendly, yet to the point, for Dad's birthday.

L. W., Washington, D. C.

I'm not quite sure that I understand your question. Do you mean to remind other members of the family that Dad's birthday is coming up? If so, why not say in a note or casual conversation that you were downtown today looking for a card or gift for your father, and thus remind them that the gentleman is about to pass a milestone? If you mean that you wish to write a card to your father, you can't beat the age-old greeting "Many happy returns of the day."

DEAR ANNE:

I have heard that there is a place that will take old woolen blankets and work them over into new ones. Can you give me the names of any such firms?

E. H., Chevy Chase, Md.

I do not know of a firm that will take old wool and actually make a new blanket of it. Does any reader? There are concerns here that will clean and revitalize blankets, restoring their softness and beauty, if they haven't been damaged by washing in excessively hot water. One such place in Rosslyn can be reached by telephoning Chestnut 0354.

DEAR ANNE:

How can I remove the stains of tea from a glass pitcher?

J. C., Winchester, Va.

Wet the stain with vinegar, then rub with a damp cloth dipped in salt. If necessary, put a vinegar-soaked cloth inside the pitcher and let the stains "soak" a while to make them easier to rub off.

Anne answers questions through her column only. Address letters to "Anne," Room 408, The Washington Post, Washington 4, D. C. Names and addresses of questioners will be used, unless specifically requested otherwise.

Let the postman be your Post man while you're away on vacation

Keep that close-to-home feeling while sunning yourself on the sand or cooling off in the mountains. Next to a daily letter from home, the best thing is your daily copy of The Washington Post. The Washington Post brings you news of Washington and the world. It brings you all the major league baseball games with heavy emphasis on your special interest, Bucky Harris' Nats. It brings you your regular morning line-up of comics, too. And the columnists, from Walter Lippmann to Walter Winchell, Joe Livingston to Joe Alsop, Mary Haworth, Shirley Povich, Jerry Kluttz, Bill Gold, Dick Coe . . . but why enumerate them, when you know them all.

All-Out Preparedness Urged By President Green of AFL

By The Associated Press

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, yesterday demanded "all-out preparedness for any eventuality"—including mobilization of labor.

"We find ourselves facing a situation with the implications of a third world war . . . If war is localized now we know it is only a question of time until the inevitable happens. Only adequate preparedness can safeguard us," the AFL leader said in a statement.

"We cannot send our soldiers to the fighting front without training equipment and regular supplies," Green said.

"We must provide quick transportation which will increase mobility.

"Above all else, we must put back of this supreme effort unity of purpose and the constructive cooperation of every group of citizens.

"For preparedness for front line service and for the safety of our civilian population at home and at work, every able-bodied citizen must find his responsibility and make good.

"There will be no sidelines secure from bombing.

"There must be mobilization of labor.

"Our unions are ready and competent to cooperate in that responsibility as free citizens should."

"As we move toward preparedness we urge our Government to provide adequate means to get the truth to all nations and keep them constantly informed," Green said.

In his preparedness plea, he noted that this Nation, as a free people, does not keep a large standing Army in times of peace, but that Russia had done the opposite and is better prepared "for military aggression" than at any time in history.

"When the President took leadership in the Far Eastern crisis, he served notice that much as we value peace we value more the principles that underlie our way of life," Green said. ". . . 'Give me liberty or give me death' is today re-echoed in the heart of every American.

"We know that the leaders in the Kremlin . . . represent the most reactionary despotism the world has ever known—men who deny the existence of God and disregard all moral principles, seize upon the power of advanced technology to serve their barbarian purposes—to force free people to live in subjugation to people who have never known freedom . . .

"To all-out strategy for world peace, we must add all-out preparedness for any eventuality."

One on the Aisle—

The Good Old Days Of Roosevelt I

By Richard L. Coe

CATHOLIC UNIVERSITY'S program note for the first of its two summer plays sets the spirit of George Ade's "The College Widow" so well, I can do no better than quote part of it:

"Untroubled America, resting in a wonderfully warm era of its history, was the place and period when George Ade wrote 'The College Widow.'

"The play opened here in Washington at the Columbia Theater in mid-September, 1904. The run was for a week prior to the New York opening . . . Washington's warm September weather and its citizens' concern with Teddy Roosevelt's presidential campaign did not augur well for the premiere of the first play about college undergraduates and athletics.

"Ade's agitation, however, quickly disappeared as the enthusiasm of the first-nighters mounted to the climax of an author-call at the curtain. When George Ade finished his speech, Admiral Dewey, hero of the Battle of Manila Bay, stood up in his box and said, 'George, it's wonderful!' "

The comedy is a carefully simple, unsophisticated story of early collegiate football. The reluctant college president's unreluctant daughter manages to keep a solid football type on the campus of the Presbyterians' Atwater College and he carries the ball to victory in the Thanksgiving Day highlight.

How placid and how distant this seems from our razzle-dazzle age is needless to describe. Quite rightly, Father Gilbert V. Hartke's direction accents the ingenuous spirit of the piece and there is a clean, wholesome vigor in the cast which matches James D. Waring's especially charming setting.

In fact, Mr. Waring's setting and Joseph Lewis' costumes are so filled with charm and affection, that they become the central bridge by which Ade's old comedy comes back to us. Originally, the play had four settings, but Waring has created an all-purpose campus spot, accessible to prexy's office and the football field, with fine understanding for a placid era.

One problem a revival of the once-successful play always faces is that its very success has been so influential, that one has seen its big scenes and its people often in carbon copies. Since this is the granddaddy of faculty-student disputes about athletics vs. scholarship, much of it seems old hat. There is, also, the boy-chasing daughter of a boarding-house keeper we've seen numberless times since.

Collegiate Singing

Especially in musicals, which was the one aspect of the C. U. play I missed. For "The College Widow" as it stands now, seems a bit lonely without song and dance. Father Hartke introduces each of the three acts with collegiate singing and I kept wishing there would be more, and that pert Patti Gorman or amusing Clayton Read would go into a dance. "Good News" and "High Button Shoes" did all this, of course, but I kept wishing C. U.'s last spring musical had turned the trick for the George Ade comedy.

Rosemary Krill is completely charming in the title role, and Bill Kearns nicely straightforward as the love of her life; both manage to look just like the advertisements one finds in the yellowing pages of the day. Ralph Culp and Pat Atkinson are cute as the script demands.

It was, indeed, a fabulously era, 46 years ago. The comedy will run through Thursday night.

THE PLACIDITY of the C. U. campus also seems to reach the summer theater of McLean, Va., which sends belated tidings across the Potomac that its new bill this week will be "Dr. Jekyl and Mr. Hyde," with Gordon Stern in the part Richard Mansfield played forever. . . . The man with the split personality will come to life tomorrow night in McLean, to run through next Sunday night.

JUST AVOIDING our town is one of the greats of theatrical criticism, Stark Young, who'll be talking tomorrow and Wednesday afternoons at the William and Mary Institute of the Theater in Williamsburg . . . Young's singular service to the theater has been in preserving some of the atmosphere of perishable performances in his volumes of critical pieces, the latest of which is "Immortal Shadows" . . . When you compare Young's lively and erudite writings of past performances with the egotistical and rambling wordage of George Jean Nathan's annual volumes, you'll see what I mean . . . "Immortal Shadows" should be in everyone's theater library.

JOAN COPPOCK, playing the demanding role of Mrs. Davidson in the Cross Roads revival of "Rain," is having her first taste of barn theater playing . . . She appeared last winter for the Mount Vernon Players after an acting career in England that took her through the provinces and down to South Africa . . . In daylight hours now she's with a London newspaper here, but her skill and presence make her one of our most welcome amateur theater residents . . . "Rain" begins its final week tomorrow night.

PREVIEW TONIGHT: And, what's nicer yet, the Palace is letting you in on what it is—"Three Little Words." . . . This is the musical biography of Songwriters Kalmar and Ruby and will be shown tonight at 9 between unspoolings of "Father of the Bride" . . . This, too, is the night auditions get under way uptown for "Going Native."

IT'S IRENE DUNNE: And if Irene resembles Victoria of England in this shot, that's as it should be. Miss Dunne is in England playing the Good Queen in a film version of the best-selling novel, "The Mudlark." While some British actors have kicked up a fuss that an American should be acting their queen, others were not miffed. They recalled Helen Hayes' great work on Victoria's behalf in "Victoria Regina"

James Yaden, Civic Leader, Dies at 69

James Garfield Yaden, 69, widely known civic leader and president of the American Federation of Government Employes, died at Garfield Hospital Saturday.

Mr. Yaden

Although he was active to the end in union and civic affairs, Mr. Yaden had been ill for several years. Two weeks ago, he fractured his hip in a fall from his bed in his home at 4119 Illinois ave. nw.

Mr. Yaden was president of the Federation of Citizens Associations in 1927, 1928, 1934, and 1935, holding that office longer than any other Federation president.

In 1948, he was elected president of the AFGE, and promptly unified the faction-torn union.

Resigned Post After Election

After his election, Mr. Yaden resigned his post as a member of the board of appeals and review of the Civil Service Commission, thus ending 36 years' service with the commission.

Born in Tennessee, Mr. Yaden grew up in Kentucky and began his career teaching in rural schools there. He served in the Kentucky House of Representatives from 1906 to 1908.

Mr. Yaden moved to Washington in 1910 to study law here but took a job with the Census Bureau instead. Two years later he transferred to the Civil Service Commission as an examiner in mathematics.

In 1920 he was appointed chief examiner of the commission, serving in that capacity until 1938, when he joined the appeals board.

Mr. Yaden's active civic career encompassed more than 30 years as a member of the Petworth Citizens Association and more than 17 years as a delegate to the Federation of Citizens Associations.

Favored Home Rule

He was strongly in favor of home rule and national representation for the District, was vitally interested in local tax problems, and believed that District government positions should go to District taxpayers.

A veteran of the Spanish-American War, Mr. Yaden was a past department commander of the United Spanish War Veterans and for 19 years headed the Grand Army of the Republic Memorial Day Corps.

He was president of the Community Center Council of the public schools for six years and taught the Yaden Bible Class at the Petworth Baptist Church for more than 20 years.

A Mason, Mr. Yaden had served as chaplain of the Petwork Lodge and was a past grand chancellor of the Knights of Pythias. He was also a member of the Odd Fellows.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Nellie M. Yaden; a son, J. Edward Yaden, 6 Forrester st., se.; a daughter, Mrs. Arthur P. Kent, 3704 Gunston rd., Alexandria; also a grandson, three brothers and four sisters.

The officers and executive board of the Federation of Citizens Associations will act as honorary pallbearers at the funeral service which will be held at 2 p. m. Tuesday at the Hines funeral home, 2901 14th st. nw. Burial will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Printers Decline New Bid to Cross Guild Picket Lines

New York, July 16 (AP). — AFL printers today turned down a World-Telegram and Sun request that they return to work through CIO American Newspaper Guild picket lines.

Francis G. Barrett, president of Local 6, AFL International Typographical Union, said of the month-old Guild strike:

"They are still mustering a very vicious picket line and our status is still the same. Our members felt that they could not risk personal injury by going through it."

The ITU was one of eight AFL craft unions asked by the World-Telegram and Sun last week to return to work Monday. It was the second such request by the newspaper.

The other craft unions which received the back-to-work plea have not made public their replies.

The Guild struck June 13 in a demand for a stricter job security clause, a tighter union shop and higher pay.

The newspaper has been closed since the strike began because AFL craft unions have refused to cross Guild picket lines.

Niagara Barrel Plunge Snagged by Back Wash

Niagara Falls, Ontario, July 16 (AP).—Maj. Lloyd Hill, 32, failed today to carry out his plan to plunge over Niagara Falls in a steel barrel.

Hill was pulled from his 11-foot-long barrel in a backwash about 200 yards above the Canadian—or Horseshoe—Falls.

Uke Sales in Millions, Thanks to Godfrey

(Ninth of a Series)

By Jack O'Brian

The Columbia Broadcasting System heaves a corporate sigh of relief as its biggest, most valuable star prepares for his Tuesday and Friday night broadcasts, "Arthur Godfrey and His Ukulele."

Some semblance of normal broadcasting is possible on this program alone of all the nine assorted telecasts, simulcasts and regular broadcasts each week that earn for Godfrey one million dollars a year, and the network a total of 10 million dollars.

Arthur Godfrey is in a unique position as star of "Arthur Godfrey and His Ukulele."

He also is the client on the program!

The 15-minute show, which is telecast "live" on Tuesday nights from 7:45 until 8, is sponsored by an orange juice concentrate that is owned partly by Godfrey.

The fact that he is a client, a buyer of time, is less satisfaction to CBS than the fact that Godfrey is "on-camera" for the full 15 minutes, playing his uke, singing to his own accompanist, and has no possible chance to wander away from the center of the TV stage and get lost.

Silly as it may seem to a casual onlooker, this can be a serious matter to the folks who produce and direct an Arthur Godfrey show, a casual undertaking for Godfrey, but a threat of ulcers, high blood pressure, constant worry and near-hysteria to everyone but The King of the Air Waves Himself.

Dick Linkroum, who directs the Wednesday evening telecast, "Arthur Godfrey and His Friends," has to keep more than a directorial eye on the show, its cameras and the pictures that will show up in the Nation's living rooms; worst of all, he has to keep a careful eye on Godfrey.

No one ever knows where or what The Redhead will do next, least of all Godfrey.

There's no anticipating him in any given instance. For radio and TV variety purposes, that's dandy. But it has a habit of driving a director stark, raving mad.

Having his usual hysteria on the Wednesday night show, Linkroum was beginning to sit back hopefully as the show moved toward its sign-off.

The Chordettes, a barber-shop quartet of young ladies who sing without instrumental accompaniment, were about midway through their number. Godfrey's movements that night were unusually quiet, a calm before a storm.

Where Is Godfrey?

Linkroum's habitually nervous glance wandered away from Arthur to see that everything was being prepared properly for the following number. Then it wandered back to Godfrey's place at the side of the stage.

YIPE!

The Chordettes had about 16 bars to go as Linkroum's eye swept the stage, the typical orderly mess of backstage props, wires, coaxial cables, cameras, assistant stage managers, underlings, CBS vice presidents and other electronic attachments, wired and human.

But no Godfrey!

The Chordettes were working up to their final notes. Arthur still was nowhere near his desk, where he was expected to show up on camera. Linkroun took the final step, the last-resort:

"I'll give a bonus to the first cameraman to pick up Godfrey!" Linkroum barked into the telephone intercommunication system that links the camera operators with the director.

The Chordettes held that last, wavering, pretty chord. Linkroum gazed at the battery of monitor images that showed what each camera viewed.

One of them shifted in a slightly unusual fashion and its movement caught Linkroum's nervous eye—and he saw that the cameraman had earned his bonus.

Godfrey Captured

He'd shifted out of position like a shortstop going after an impossible ball, and had captured Godfrey for his millions of viewers.

"It's your bonus!" cried Linkroum triumphantly, sitting back exhausted from the violent half minute of dread.

From just such small, constant, shattering incidents come radio's and television's traditional occupational irritation, duodenal ulcers.

But none for Godfrey.

The redhead wanders blithely through all this nerve-tearing atmosphere as if it were a quiet glade. The frantic backstage crises never quite touch him. By now he has assembled a reputation for refusing to be bothered—and that goes for anyone. Repeat: Anyone!

Anyone, that is, but some unfortunate kid who might need the attention of some such popular idol to give him a feeling of self-importance, of belonging, a reason for overcoming handicaps that might make him despair about becoming a second-rate citizen.

No hoopla accompanies God-

THE SKIPPER—Tickled as a kid with a new toy is Arthur the Great. His toy is a $125,000 DC-3, the gift of the aviation industry to a valuable friend. Although officially he's a lieutenant commander in the U. S. Naval Reserve, Our Hero is the boss of his own ship and thus entitled to be addressed as "Captain Godfrey." He says so himself on the plane's fuselage frey's trip to various charitable organizations, and he runs away, embarrassed, at the gratitude showed by the directors of such causes. His only regret is an inability to help them all.

Godfrey's Tuesday night ukulele lesson is performed "live" from a TV studio, but his Friday night show, of simliar format, is filmed on kinescope to permit its showing while the redhead is at his Virginia farm with his wife and family.

Between his regular morning radio broadcast and his TV shows, Tuesday is one more disaster for everyone around him, leaving the center of this whirling hysteria calm and contented.

Wednesdays, of course, start out with his morning show. That having been accomplished, he again visits his office in the CBS building for whatever humdrum has attached itself to him that day; it never is, need I add, very much.

His rehearsals — as they are laughingly called—for his TV show, "Arthur Godfrey and His Friends," take up some of his afternoon, and he is back at the studio—a former legitimate theater—in time for the telecast at 8 p. m.

Just Among Friends

That, too, is a walk-through for Godfrey, and again, once behind him, he has a chance to go to the Stork Club and visit with his friends Morton Downey, publicist Steve Hannagan when he is in town, and Sherman Billingsley.

Or he may cut up a few touches with Walter Winchell, the man who gave him his biggest impetus back in 1934, or with whatever columnists or friends he happens to be among.

For a fellow who somehow has gathered a reputation for being one of the bibulous boys, a man with a thirst of incredible proportions, Godfrey now drinks an amazingly small amount.

In his younger days, he admits, he did his share, but a couple of drinks after his last broadcast or telecast of the day is as much as he now could take and remain in his present excellent physical shape.

He relaxes two evenings a week—Mondays and Wednesdays—with friends. The other nights he proves he is no superman and hits the hay at a proper hour for a fellow of 46 who has to be up and on the job early next morning.

One more evening show on Saturday night tops off the Godfrey week, but that is the easiest of all. It's called "Arthur Godfrey's Digest," and it's just that—a repeat performance of the better moments of his morning CBS radio shows.

From these deep week-long wells of fun and music are taken, by tape recordings, the entire Godfrey output.

These thereafter are edited for a particularly sparkling solo by Janette Davis, an unusually good Bill Lawrence song, one of the richer concertos by The Chordettes and a rousing bit of old-fashioned harmony, or maybe bop, by the Mariners.

Add a couple of Godfrey's songs and ukulele exercises, his improvised hilarity and just plain high good humor, and it becomes one of the pleasantest half-hours on the air.

Enjoys Nights at Home

Godfrey can sit home in Virginia, surrounded by his loved ones and his beloved 300 acres of rich farmland, and hear for a change what the rest of us think is such superior diversion.

But even there, Godfrey considers himself and his career from arm's length and again voices his own incredulity at the stratospheric spot he has attained in the entertainment world.

"How did it all happen?" he's asked himself.

And he admits answering in the same wondering vein:

TOMORROW: Godfrey strums the ukulele into a multi-millionaire industry.

Stork Club Show Provides Punch

By John Crosby

SOME years back when an electron beam was still a novelty, decent citizens deserted their homes by the millions and took to the saloons where they stood like bewitched children around primitive television sets and watched wrestlers performing their ancient, tribal war dances.

Many of these hitherto law-abiding folk took to drink. Others were struck blind by the wonders, or possibly the inadequacies, of early television. This period, known as the Saloon Age of Television, was altogether deplorable, sociologically speaking.

However, one man decided to do something about this terrible situation. And that man was—a little introductory music on the clavichord, mother!—Sherman Billingsley, the noted temperance worker of East Fifty-third Street.

"Why should these poor misguided folk be lured out of their parlors and into saloons?" Mr. Billingsley asked himself. Or some such question.

"I shall restore these people to their sanity. I shall bring the saloons into their parlors. I shall return the parents to their little neglected ones. And while I'm at it, I can teach the little ones how to order a double gin sling with the proper inflection."

Mr. Billingsley took his proposal to the Columbia Broadcasting System which enthusiastically agreed that this was the greatest advance in the temperance dodge since Carrie Nation hung un her ax. Well, the upshot—a little upshot music, mother, we're approaching the denouement—was a program called "The Stork Club," which you'll find on CBS TV network Wednesday and Friday (7:45 p. m., E.D.T.). Later it'll be on Monday night, too.

Stork Club a Saloon

BY ONE OF THOSE FREAKISH coincidences, the Stork Club happens also to be the name of Mr. Billingsley's well-known saloon where the patrons are strictly forbidden from drinking more than is good for them, unless they have the money to pay for it. In addition to his zeal on the behalf of temperance, Mr. Billingsley is also extraordinarily gifted at the art of publicizing his saloon, which is a very widely renowned place indeed.

The Stork Club has been celebrated variously in a "Cosmopolitan" serial, a motion picture and more national columns than I care to count. Last winter, in case the name was growing dim in some citizen's mind in Dubuque, there was a television program entitled "Murder at the Stork Club," starring Franchot Tone and featuring Mr. Billingsley himself.

Mr. Billingsley's principal task in this epic was to appear at the end of it to assure the audience that no one ever had actually been murdered at the Stork Club. After this column, I propose to stay out of the place forever. I wouldn't like to sully that record.

But of all Mr. Billingsley's publicity feats, I should say this one is the most wondrous of all. I know of no other inn-keeper in all history sufficiently mellifluous to persuade a national network to build a $100,000 studio on top of his saloon and to pay him $2000 a week for this privilege of of publicizing his water-hole from coast to coast. Bow down, P. T. Barnum, you old dilettante! You're in the presence of a real pro.

Strives for Informality

AS FOR the program itself—and it's high time—the Stork Club strives for informality and achieves it. Peter Lind Hayes and his wife Mary Healy, two of the most gifted and charming young people in show business, drift about a replica of the Cub Room introducing celebrities (and some folk who have only remote claim to the title). When they find a real good one—Jack Dempsey, say—they interview him. If a guest, like Yvonne Adair of "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," happens also to be a singer, she sings. Mr. Hayes contributes a dry, sardonic chatter to the proceedings, and occasionally he and Miss Healy fill in with one of their song or patter numbers.

It's a very pleasant, though hardly notable, 15-minute show. And, if it succeeds in keeping people out of saloons, I should like to be the first to express my incredulity. It'll keep me out of one of them, anyhow.

The DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Lost Dog, Lost Master Together Again

This is the story of a Marine Corps captain who found a lost dog wearing a Virginia license tag.

He traced the tag to a Virginia address, but when he phoned he was told that the owner had moved away and left no forwarding address.

"Well," said the canny captain, "take my phone number anyhow, just in case he ever comes back to the old neighborhood."

And in a few hours, the owner of the dog called and made arrangements to reclaim his pet. It turned out he hadn't moved at all. It was his sister who answered the phone, and she wasn't giving out information to unknown callers who might turn out to be bill collectors.

BASEBALL QUIZ

Charlie Williams of 1405 53d ave., Hillside, Md., has a cutie for baseball fans:

"How can a pitcher throw four consecutive strikes (no fouls) to a batter and fail to retire him?"

GAMBLING SENTENCE

"There's no safety in numbers," muses T. E. Strickler,

"for the fellow who tries to write them when the cops are watching."

VACATION-TIME SERMON

At the start of each summer, and when the kids get their school vacation, fellows like me write smug little sermons preaching safety first to swimmers, boaters, motorists and bike riders.

The accident toll ashore and afloat remains appalling. But we keep preaching, in the hope that an occasional statistic going someplace to happen will read—and heed.

Surely with a little care and common sense we could cut down the pathetic number of tragedies that befall our children and their bicycles.

There are 18 million bike riders in this country. And some 90 percent of them are youngsters.

We indulgent parents buy them two-wheelers, admonish them to "stay out of traffic," and turn them loose. We've "done our duty."

But you can't stay out of traffic in a big city. And neither boy nor bicycle is ready to buck it.

An adult is forbidden to drive until he has learned the traffic code, passed several examinations, and demonstrated his ability to handle a car. The kids are on their own.

In case of an accident, a motorist gets some measure of protection from the ton of steel in which he's riding. A boy on a bicycle hasn't a chance.

We won't permit an auto to use our streets until it has been inspected, tested, and pronounced safe.

But who tests a child's bike to make sure the brakes work? Who checks up on the lights and reflectors? Who sees to it that the handlebars are tight, and the horn or bell works?

Who gives lectures about the special hazards of riding a bike, either in the street or on the sidewalk? And about riding "no hands," and two-on-a-bike?

I don't know how those questions will be answered at your house, but over at our place the answer will have to be: Nobody.

Instead of writing sermons for other parents, I think I'd better start lecturing myself. And our 14-year-old bike rider.

RADIOS FOR SHUT-INS

"Some time back," writes Edith G. Traeger of 830 D st. se., "you wrote of the need for radios in local hospitals.

"I have a radio that I'd like to give to a hospital, but it should have some repair work first. Are the hospitals equipped to fix it up?"

The answer is, "probably not." But Harold Sugar, of 625 F st. nw. (opposite Hecht's) is always willing to lend a hand in such cases, for free, and then you can deliver the set to the hospital of your choice.

PERSONAL NOTES

Justine Cook, 2511 14th st. ne.: Used pianos are sometimes offered in the Give-Aways, but the donor usually specifies "for worthwhile group or institution." All I can suggest to individuals is that they keep watching the listings.

THIS IS WASHINGTON

A dignified, middle-aged member of one of America's oldest families stood quietly in line outside a Senate hearing room. Beside him stood two women.

If you can judge a person's occupation by his appearance, the women were New England school teachers.

After a few minutes of opinionated comment on the matter before the committee, the ladies solicited the views of the middle-aged man.

He answered courteously, but apparently not to their liking. One of the women turned to the other and, quite audibly, sniffed: "The melting pot doesn't always melt, does it, my dear?"

Three hundred years of American family tree welled to the fore as the man fixed them with an icy stare and murmured:

"Immigrants!"

ANSWER TO QUIZ

Easy, wasn't it? The pitcher throws two strikes to the batter, a runner is caught off base for the third out, and then the same batter comes up in the next inning with no count on him, and takes two more strikes. Four consecutive, just like the man said.

Food Bins Are Full in Emergency

By Drew Pearson

Food Bins Full—the present emergency finds America's food bins brimming full—though food would probably have to be rationed again in case of total war. Fats and oils would be first on the ration list, because they are needed for manufacturing munitions.

Pearson

However, the Agriculture Department has one pound of butter in cold storage for every person in the United States. Sugar would also be rationed, though the shipping lanes to Cuba and Hawaii would be easier to keep open than in World War II. Meat would gradually come under rationing, though livestock production is now at an all-time high. The corn and wheat bins are also full.

Rates for Pan Am

With the exception of one man, the entire Civil Aeronautics Board is really burnt up at the way President Truman handed new air routes to Pan American Airways in reversing the CAB and merging Pan American with American Overseas Airlines.

Chairman Joe O'Connell was so sore that he resigned.

Latest favoritism to Pan Am, they point out, follows another choice morsel handed Pan Am by the White House. Two years ago, the CAB decided there was barely enough air traffic to justify an air route from Seattle to Honolulu, but agreed to certify Northwest Airlines to fly the route.

Shortly thereafter, Truman went over CAB's head and added Pan American Airways to the same route.

At that time, October, 1948, Truman badly needed campaign funds for a radio broadcast, and Louis Johnson is credited with bringing in the dough—from his good friends and clients, Pan American Airways. Johnson, at that time, received a legal retainer of $18,000 a year from Pan Am, and simultaneously was the big money-raiser for the Democratic Party.

Now Truman has done the same thing all over again and not only reversed the CAB regarding the PAA-AOA merger, but has given Pan Am some new routes in addition.

Note: The one exception is CAB Vice Chairman Oswald Ryan, Pan Am's longtime friend, whose secret session with Truman helped arrange his reversal.

Need for Specialists

At the same time the Army is appealing to reserve officers to sign up for active duty, it is punishing those who do. As a result, it can't get the reserves it needs most—doctors, engineers, radar specialists and Signal Corps technicians.

The reason these specialists aren't responding is that they not only must give up their private occupations, but also take a demotion in rank. The Army stubbornly refuses to accept volunteers unless they return to active duty in the same rank they held before their release. Since all eligible reserve officers have been promoted, volunteering now would mean a demotion for most of them.

Yet, if they are called back to active duty, the law requires the Army to take them at their present rank. In other words, those who volunteer are demoted, but those ordered back keep the same rank.

Note: The Navy, with a different reserve system, is accepting volunteer officers at their present rank.

Korean 'Slave Labor'

Though North Korea has been shut behind the Iron Curtain for five years, enough information has leaked out to give a picture of what has been going on.

One of the first acts of the Russian masters was to set aside a special "Siberia" for Korean political prisoners. This is the Soviet island of Sakhalin, which the Russians are feverishly transforming into a military base.

A total of 50,000 Koreans has been deported to Sakhalin since the Iron Curtain slammed across the thirty-eighth parallel. A pretense was usually made of "hiring" them—though the pay was so low that it amounted to slavery. Many of the "labor contracts" were of 40 years duration.

For those permitted to remain at home, the Communist constitution for North Korea promised an eight-hour working day. However, the workers were constantly pressured to work longer and harder.

For example, the youth-working unit of the Mumpyong refinery recently pledged to fulfill 180 percent of the normal quota during a "commemoration production campaign." They were paid no extra wages. Workers also are obliged to buy government bonds on the basis of the number of members in their families who receive food.

The government taxes farmers almost 25 per cent of everything harvested, besides fixing compulsory quotas for delivery of crops to the government. Farmers who cannot meet the quotas or pay the taxes are severely punished—even though they were not at all to blame for their bad harvest.

The Soviet also stripped North Korea of lead, zinc, steel, fuel, lumber and other strategic materials. As a propaganda gesture the Soviets paid for what they took but it did not come near the fair value.

After stripping Korean factories, Russia forced the few factories still operating to produce for the benefit of the Soviet Union. This was accomplished by long-term contracts and through "joint stock companies."

Because of these conditions, two million North Koreans have risked their lives to slip across the border into democratic South Korea.

The Corcoran Gallery of Art Sesqui Exhibit Paints Colorful Settings for Fashions from The Hecht Co.

Connoisseurs of art and fashion joined enthusiasms when the Corcoran Gallery's Sesquicentennial Art Exhibit opened on July 9th. Vividly depicting American history, 311 art compositions unfolded an "American Processional," exciting as a trip through an American history book. Prominent in an audience of artists and art lovers, all members of the Corcoran Art Gallery Association, was the popular Virginia Baker, gracefully acknowledging compliments for her artful ensembles from The Hecht Co. Like so many on-the-go Washingtonians, the vivacious Virginia looks to the Fashion Floor of this great store in the Nation's Capital for flattering costumes for important social functions like this.

The city of Washington in its earliest days and the exciting Washington of the future are shown in scale models at The Corcoran by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission and the National Commission of Fine Arts. Recognizing Capital landmarks are (left to right) Miss Jane Love, Mrs. Heath C. Moorman, Mrs. Madiha Umar, and Virginia Baker (Mrs. F. M. Rogers) wearing The Hecht Co.'s embroidered rayon marquisette dress at $16.95.

On hand at The Corcoran for the thrilling five-month art show of twelve galleries full, documenting America from 1492 to 1900 are (left to right): Virginia Baker (Mrs. F. M. Rogers), Mrs. Fred Lee Prew, Mrs. James M. Minifie, Miss Barbara Ferrell, and Mrs. Heath C. Moorman.
